OPP Report

Madoc Provincial Police reported a quiet week with only two minor accidents occurring in the Madoc area.

The first occurred on Nov. 26 when Elizabeth Ross of Madoc swerved to avoid a dog and entered the ditch. The accident which resulted in $1,000 damage, took place at 3:15 p.m. on the 6-7 Concession just north of highway 7. P.C. Walt Sawkin was the investigating officer.

A single vehicle accident resulted in an estimated $2,500 damage Nov. 28. Michael Flynn of Bancroft was on 62 highway 3.5 kilometers north of the Cleveland road when the vehicle he was driving hit a slushy section, the driver lost control, and the vehicle entered the ditch. The incident occurred at 1:39 p.m. Provincial Constable Derek Travis was the investigating officer.

Sweet Sounds of "Cavalcade"

Madoc area residents were treated to the sweet sound of the "Cavalcade" Wednesday night at Madoc Public School. "Cavalcade" is a singing group composed of three men and four women, assisted by two technicians. They travel extensively throughout the United States and parts of Canada conveying what they describe as "the saving message of Jesus Christ." They were in Madoc on the invitation of Pastor Stephen Kennedy of Madoc and Bannockburn Pentecostal Churches. In addition to the evening concert the group also performed for two assemblies at the school during the day.

Based in Hampstead Maryland, the group was created three years ago during the American Bicentennial celebrations primarily as a patriotic musical troupe known as the "I Love America Cavalcade." Since that time it has become more evangelical in nature.

"Our schedule is very hectic," explained Dave Logan, road manager for the group. "We try to take one night a week off but we usually appear six and maybe seven nights a week in different locations. For that reason group members sign up for one year only. We really enjoy the experience but that is as long as you can keep up that pace."

The group will appear in only two other cities in Canada, Toronto and Montreal. They will also tape a television show in Kingston.

The founder of the group, the Reverend Don Newman, who is still the group's executive director, lives in Toronto which explains why the group is making its brief detour to Canada.

"Cavalcade" members are between the ages of 18 and 24. They have taken a year off from work or studies to sing on a voluntary basis. Theirs is what they call a "faith venture" financed solely by donations and honorariums.

Hastings Board plans future

"We must do anything we can to express the urgency of capital projects," Tom Burnside, trustee for the centre Hastings area told the Hastings County Board of Education Monday, Nov. 27. Mr. Burnside shares with his fellow trustees and administrators the concern that the Ministry of Education will only provide a small percentage of funds requested for capital projects this year.

In accordance with the guidelines established by the Ministry of Education, the Board has been required to submit a Capital Expenditure Forecast each year since 1970 to the Ministry. In this Capital Forecast, the projects proposed by the Board in the next calendar year are presented with support data and estimated costs. Proposed projects for four additional years are also required to be included.

The total capital forecast for the next four years is $15,883,000. The forecast for 1979 is $6,892,000. Of that money $272,000 has been set aside for fire safety improvements and advanced renovations to Madoc Public School.

Advance Renovations, explained Lyle DeCaire, Controller of Plant for Hastings County, pertains to improvements in the heating, electrical and alarm systems. Fire safety improvements involve bringing the safety features of the school up to current building requirements.

"I don't think it is likely that the renovations will be made to Madoc Public School this year," said Mr. Burnside. "The number one priority, improvements to King George School, was the number priority last year and it is still uncompleted."

Madoc is well down the list of priorities at ninth out of 14 projects.

It was suggested by Belleville Trustee William Hockley that neighboring boards should join forces and develop a strategy before approaching the ministry.

Other trustees, including Mr. Burnside supported this suggestion because they are concerned that major projects needed in older schools will only increase in cost the longer they are delayed.

Capital expenditures, if not supported by grants would come directly from the Annual Co-op Meeting Held

Madoc Co-Operative manager Earl Helps brought smiles to those attending the Thirtieth Annual Meeting Thursday night with his presentation of the financial report of the Co-Op for the year which ended August 31, 1978.

Mr. Helps has been the manager of the Madoc Co-Op for seven years and during that time sales have increased by $68,000 compared to the 1977 total. The total sales were $1,489,305 in 1978. The May sales this year amounted to $233,523 which is almost half of the total sales for the year 1971. "I am very proud of that record and I thank you the customers," he said.

A bigger whip is what he said he would need to collect accounts receivable next year.

The co-operative has this year entered into an agreement for the construction of new premises at an estimated cost of $150,000. These new facilities have been delayed but the complications have been rectified and only the weatherman threatens the completion, Mr. Helps said.

Looking ahead to next year the manager said that "we are trying a new prepaid account system which would be advantageous to farmers such as those who receive local taxpayers who could not afford such costs, Mr. Burnside explained.

The renovations necessary at King George Public School in Belleville will cost an estimated $575,000. Last year the Hastings County Board requested $14,209,500 and received only $420,000 provincial grant.

"We have things that have to be done or we could have a tragedy," Mr. Hocley warned the board.

On the bright side Mr. DeCaire told the Madoc Review that it is quite likely that Madoc Public School will have the money, through normal maintenance funds, to replace all the windows on one side of the school and perhaps more this year. The windows are causing concern because they do not properly seal and because they present a safety hazard to children playing in the yard.

The windows open outwards and on the ground floor could endanger children playing near them should they run into them or stand up underneath them.

Guessing at the cost of this project Mr. DeCaire said that he would roughly estimate the changes would amount to $12,000.

Chamber of Commerce Draw

The Chamber of Commerce draw at Wilson's Gift Store, Saturday December 2 was won by the following people: First prize, a cheque for $200.00, was won by Karen Grabalowski of Kingston; the second prize was donated by the Madoc Meat Market and won by Carol Ann station and won by Doug Chapman and fifth prize donated by Wilson's Gifts was won by Ezra Carman.

Kramp; third prize was donated by the Madoc Hotel and won by George Hoover. Fourth prize was donated by Kramp's B.P.

You are what you eat

by Pastor Blair Groves

You are what you eat! We've been more impressed with the truth of this statement in the past several years. This awareness is due to the combined effect of the advent of health foods, newspaper articles, T.V. programmes, etc. From these, we learn of foods we're so accustomed to eating and which we find delightful, but which can be harmful to the body. Included in this list are foods such as eggs or butter, which are high in cholesterol.

But eating is not the only kind of consumption. Some T.V. programs provide us with "trash" on which to feed. We can watch soap-operas in which Mary runs-off with her husband's best friend, or shows in which violence is the number of one calling card. I don't have to watch to know about it, I hear of it through the "grape-vine." You are what you see and hear, too! If we feed on these things, do we sometimes wonder why we suspect our spouse; or find ourselves becoming like those we see on the screen?

The Bible states, "As a man thinketh, so is he." (Prov. 23:7a) What goes on in a person's mind determines what he says and does; in other words, what he is!

Friends, what are you feeding on? The Bible speaks of those whose "delight is in the law of the Lord," the Bible itself, (Psalm 1:2a). Do you take pleasure in "feeding-on"; or reading the Bible?

Certainly not all on T.V. is bad, much is entertaining and informative, but much is not. Today, why not walk past that T.V., go to the shelf, take up your Bible, and feed! In it is a well balanced "diet".

Centre Hastings Grammar Schools Hold Volleyball Tourney

Madoc Public School was host to the Centre Hastings-Associated School group junior boys' volleyball tournament Friday. Included in that group with Madoc Public are Madoc Township School, and the public schools in Marmora, Tweed, Stirling and St. Carthage's Separate School, Tweed.

Strong serving helped Madoc Public School junior boys to defeat Marmora by a score of 21-6, Friday.

While the junior boys were playing in Madoc the senior boys were in Stirling, the senior girls were in Tweed and the tournament for the junior girls was at the Madoc Township School.

The winners of these tournaments will proceed to the County Tournament.

Following the day's activities Madoc Public School emerged the victors in the senior girls division; Stirling took the senior boys; junior girls champion was Stirling and the Tweed junior boys topped their division.

Provincial Board Member Describes W.I.'s Public Contribution

Did you know that the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario (FWIO) contributed to the legislation that led to bread being wrapped for sanitary reasons; contributed over $40,000, clothing bedding and foods at the time of Hurricane Hazel in Ontario; in recent years sent thousands of dollars to "Save Sight" and supported many more projects to educate women and help in their self-development?

Perhaps you did not even know that the Women's Institute (WI) had a provincial voice, in which case you would not know that if you are a member of a local branch you are automatically, not only a provincial member but part of the national Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

Vera Hill of the Madoc Branch of the Women's Institute is the second member from that branch, since its inception in 1910, to have the honor of serving on the Provincial Board of Directors. Mrs. Hill recently returned from a week-long conference in Toronto where she represented Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, one of the 32 divisions across the province.

She enthusiastically described the project that was adopted by the Provincial Board for 1979.

"This year has been declared 'International Year of the Child' and it was decided the 29,000 provincial members should try to become more aware of the need for good health care in the young. Members will encourage total immunization as well as good health care for children and try to make parents aware of

Junior Girls Top

"We're No. 1"

The Centre Hastings Secondary School junior girls' basketball team is number one in Central Ontario after two decisive victories Saturday. Their first game was against an Oshawa team which they defeated by a score of 33-26. Then in their final game they walked away with a 66-35 victory over Peterborough and the C.O.S.S.A.A. trophy.

"We were really happy about winning," team member Nancy Watson said. "We just played altogether better this year, last year we didn't even make it to the Bay of Quinte championship."

The girls are the first to take the

C.O.S.S.A.A. championship but winning was not new to them having completed their ten-game regular season undefeated. Only four of the team members will remain in the junior league next year, the rest will be looking forward to repeating their performance in the senior division.

Tammy Sager was the team's manager, coached by Yvonne Mabo.

111 Years Old, Trumble Publishes Latest Book

"You take a horse's hoof. That hoof made wonderful glue. The greatest glue that ever was. That's what they got this 'Devil's Glue' out of."

It was awful stuff to glue you. If you got it on your fingers, got it on anything, you couldn't get it off. It stuck like the Devil."

That is a bit of David Trumble from his new book "The Road to St. Ola and Other Stories." Many people in the Madoc area are familiar with Dave's style for many read and enjoyed his first book "When I Was a Boy" which has now been published by J.M. Dent and Sons in soft cover. But this man's work is not something one would tire of after the first book nor after the first reading. Dave is a storyteller, a born storyteller, he says. The fascinating effect his words weave on the mind of the reader seem to justify his claim.

Some would doubt his tales and some would even doubt his age but it would be difficult to find another man today who so obviously bears the mark of a true oral historian. Today we can read and we can write but we have lost the gift that this illiterate man has of storing words, tales and sensations in our memories. That unique ability along with the almost musical quality of his words give value to his stories which make questions of truth or fiction irrelevant.

"If I slip I'm not aware of it. What you don't know is no sin," he said when one of his "young", (84 year-old), friends told him he had gotten a few things wrong. "There was a way for everything."

In olden times there was a way for everything. No matter what you did there was a way for everything, a way for everything."

"When I Was a Boy" was full of descriptions as to how things were done in the "old days". "The Road to St. Ola" tells of how to break spells, find bee trees and talk to oxen but it also includes sensations and reflections.

Dave has experienced much in his day. He was married four times and lives in Northbrook with one of his 19 children. But the years are catching up to him and this winter he is going to stay with his niece in Grafton.

On December 15 Global television will be helping him to celebrate his 111th birthday. "I've been an old fox a long time," he chuckled.

"The Road to St. Ola" was a year in the making. Dave tells his tales to Glen Ellis who tapes them and then prepares them in blank verse style for publishing. Dave enjoys working with Mr. Ellis and the sensitive way in which the stories are joined together shows that Mr. Ellis must also appreciate his work and his opportunity.

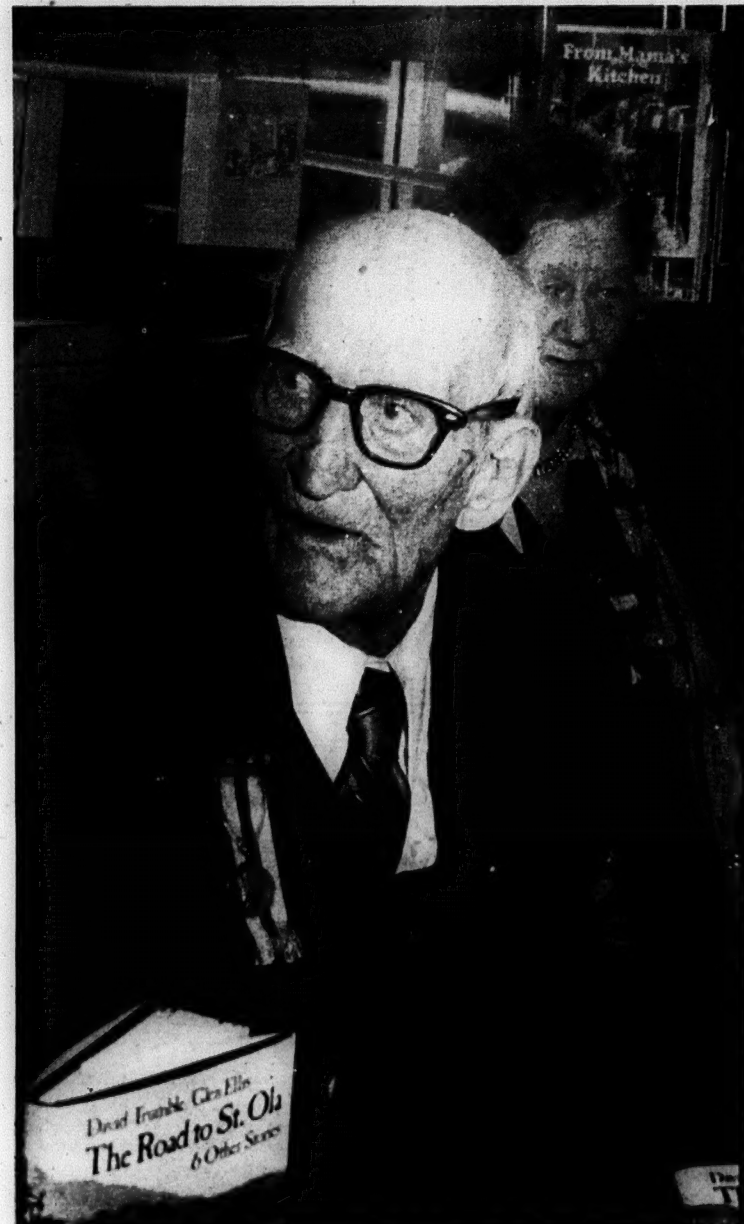

His next book, Dave says, will deal with the future. He has always had the ability to "see" things which are not apparent to others and this book will contain some of his visions.

He is not hopeful about the world of today and its direction. He feels that we have "gone about as far as we can."

But in the immediate future he is packing his bags to be off on a promotional tour with Mr. Ellis through southern and central Ontario.

For those who know the area around

Gunter and St. Ola, Corbyville and Gashel and those who enjoy stories of life as it existed before the car and the electric light bulb this book will be a treasure and a delight.

David Trumble, 111 years old, autographed copies of his new book, "The Road to St. Ola" Saturday in Belleville.

Accentuate the Positive

"We must accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative," Mike Biro, guest speaker at the Thirteenth Annual Co-Operative Meeting, told members Thursday night at the Anglican Parish Hall.

"We as Canadians tend to think of problems, not the good things. But having visited a Communist country this summer I can tell you we have much to be glad about. We think we have bureaucracy here but the difference is that there bureaucrats carry guns."

To further "accentuate the positive" Mr. Biro related how it had taken three and a half hours for 12 cars to be cleared by customs at a border crossing the fact that gasoline is $3.75 a gallon and that there is only one channel available.

"I am very happy to be a Canadian," he said, "and pleased and excited to be here tonight where members have decided to expand, not looking to the past but looking to the future."

Madoc Co-op Manager Earl Helps was

milk cheques and hog cheques and who are flushed one month and not the next. Under this system the farmer could deposit his money and receive an interest rate of 9.5 per cent per year credited to the account at the end of each month. That way the money would be there for purchases and would also be put to work for the good of the co-operative.

At the provincial level Clifford Allen reported that United Co-Operatives of Ontario (UCO) recorded its highest sales, (which he said he preferred to call service to customers), in its history.

"Sales increased by 21 per cent," he said. "This year we had $369,000,000 in sales, not including independent co-op sales. That is more than $1,000,000 a day for every day of the year. This was done with the support of the members who accounted for 73 per cent of those sales. The number of members increased to 44,651 this year."

Speaking of the expansion of the Madoc facilities, we congratulate the members saying: "The Madoc Co-Op is an example of what people can do for themselves by working together."

Mr. Allen thanked the members for their support during his nine years as their provincial representative. He will be replaced by Howard Malcolm of Lindsay in 1979.

New Directors for Madoc Co-op

Two new directors Danny Brinson and Jack Howard will replace retiring Mike Haley and Jim Thompson of the Board of Directors of the Madoc Co-Operative association. These men along with David Franks who was eligible and was re-elected will be serving a three-year term beginning in 1979. This decision was made by those attending the Thirteenth Annual Co-Operative Association Banquet at the Anglican Parish Hall, Madoc Thursday night. There were no other nominees for the positions on the nine member board.

Bowling A Way of Life for all Ages

Jo-anne Stevenson and her Thursday league enjoy themselves thoroughly.

Agricultural Technology at Kemptville

The Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology will be offering a new agricultural equipment service course this winter.

Aimed at people with mechanical ability but not involved in an apprenticeship program, the course will provide training in the maintenance and repair of agricultural equipment.

After 40 weeks the student receives a certificate from the College. Says Dr. John Clark who heads up the program, "If the graduate decides to get a farm mechanic's license, his school time would likely be cut down because of the program."

New facilities have been built at the College to handle the program. They include fuel, hydraulic and engine labs, along with additional welding and automotive electricity shops.

For admittance, a student must be 18 years or older.

The course begins in January, running for 40 consecutive weeks. Two, three-week in-service training sessions are included in the 40 week period.

Clark says there will be a high demand for graduates. "Some will go to large highly mechanized farms. Some will be picked up by dealerships where they can work toward their farm mechanic's license." Clark notes a high turnover among farm mechanics in the industry.

Four years ago Jo-anne Stevenson had never bowled a game in her life. Then three years ago she and her husband Gardiner bought Madoc Bowl and now bowling has become for her, a way of life. But Madoc Bowl is a bowling alley with a difference. It caters to customers old and young in a way that makes it rather a community institution.

"The first year it was hard to build up the business," she explained. "The bowling alley had been closed for quite some time before we bought it so people had gotten away from it."

That has certainly changed as pins are now flying every afternoon but Monday and every night but Sunday. The most interesting aspect of the Madoc Bowl is the range of ages participating in the sport.

During that first year of operation Mrs. Stevenson was approached by two women Dora Palmer and Tyne Tufts who asked her if they could bring a group of senior citizens up to bowl on Thursday. "We came up, started rolling balls and are still at it," Mrs. Palmer said.

The group which began with 13 members is now known as the "Golden Age Group" as friends began to join and the ages became increasingly varied. Last year the group grew to 22 and now there are 49 devoted bowlers making the weekly climb each Thursday.

There are no set teams, it is fun rather than competition that brings these bowlers to the lanes. There is free coffee, friendly conversation and at the end of the year a banquet to keep the league a very social affair.

Perhaps it was because she had to learn to bowl as an adult that one day while listening to the cries of a three-year old who wanted to try his hand at the game Mrs. Stevenson thought, why not start a league for beginners. She suggested to the parents that they go ahead and let their boy play and shortly thereafter she began her Saturday morning league for children three to eight.

Last year she had 16 PeeWees, this year 35 and she will have close to 40 by the end of December.

"I could never do this on my own," she explained, "I have a tremendous lot of interested parents. They help on the lanes and keep score."

Some of the children are so young that the numbers do not mean much so Mrs. Stevenson has created a star system. Two gold stars signify 100 points and up, one gold 80-100 and a green star 55-75.

Mrs. Stevenson has proven that her sport, (she plays in leagues herself two nights a week), is one for all ages. This year she is looking forward to the prospect of high school gym classes coming during the day to round out her almost complete bowlers of all ages.

Dora Palmer was one of the originators of the Golden Age bowlers.

the available help and protection they have to draw upon," she said.

Speaking of her 35 years in the WI Mrs. Hill said that she had learned a great deal from the practical and excellent courses offered through the Ministry of Agriculture and Food to WI members.

ture and Food to WI members.

"Beginning in January the WI will be offering a breadmaking course. We are considering, for the future, such topics as indoor gardening and common sense nutrition for men, women and people living alone."

Each Summary Day, (the day projects are displayed following completion of a course), participants are asked to suggest possible topics of interest. The projects offered are set up to meet these demands.

The WI by uniting the voices of women across the province, is able to make those voices heard in widespread areas of public concern. There are, for example, representatives of the WI on the Ontario Hydro Commission, the Royal Winter Fair Board and the Canadian Agricultural Hall of Fame Association.

This year Helen May McKercher, in recognition of her many contributions to the cause of better family living, was named to the Canadian Agricultural Hall of Fame. She is an Honorary President of the FWIO and life member of the Associated Countrywomen of the World (ACWW).

The WI is also working at the provincial level to restore the Erland Lee Home in Stoney Creek where the WI was first conceived in 1910.

With concern for other countries as well the members at the provincial directors meeting voted $2,000 through the ACWW to help India in a program of nutritive food and compulsory immunization, as well as help for the mothers in proper nutrition and child care. The FWIC is a member of this world wide women's organization.

"Locally, provincially, nationally and internationally, the WI has been a powerful influence, giving women a voice, an opportunity to become better informed, as they have sought needed changes and has provided educational direction, thus fulfilling the needs of the day," Mrs. Hill concluded.

vice-president. As Inter House Council executives, it will be their responsibility to represent the interests and needs of the Centre Hastings student body.

Junior and Senior assemblies were held on Tuesday of last week to introduce the four candidates running for position and to give them the opportunity to present their platforms to the students.

The election assembly was opened by Mr. Henderson, principal of CHSS. During his opening remarks, he presented Graham Gough with a plaque commending him for his hard work and dedication during his past term as president.

Graham's term expires on January 1st and, in an address to the students, he reflected on his position as student president and remarked that he had experienced a great deal of personal growth because of it.

Running for president were Pierre Belanger and Grant Miller and for vice-president, Seana Gall and Rene Carson. The candidates gave speeches outlining their plans if elected and then answered any questions directed from the audience. Among student concerns were activity periods, school dances, the semester system and, most importantly, school spirit.

Pierre and Rene should both contribute greatly to the student government and, if their leadership is as strong as past executives of the I.H.C., Centre Hastings students will have very capable representation within the school.

Hastings 4-H Achievement Day Awards

By Maureen Cassidy

On Saturday December 2nd, the first half-day Achievement Day was held at Centre Hastings Secondary School. The day commenced at 9:30 with registration and the welcoming speech by Miss Valerie Clark Home Economist for Hastings County. Following this, was the presentation of leaders' badges and comments on the project "Essential Edibles". A special feature film was shown, "Snacks Count Too."

The club presentations which consisted of five exhibits and five skits were presented throughout the morning with comments given later by Miss Clark. Special congratulations and awards were extended to the girls receiving county and provincial honors. Those receiving County Honors with completion of six homemaking clubs were Kathy Baker and Wendy Devolin of Hart's Rigg's, Marilyn Robinson and Margaret Rose VanderWey of Chapman Chums and Susan Mitchell of Marmora II. Provincial Honors completion of twelve homemaking clubs were received by Vicky Healey and Joan Kinlin of Chapman Chums, Pam Blackburn Govier of Crookston and Carol Shannon of Marmora I.

Silver teaspoons and Certificates of Achievement were received by all club members who successfully completed the project. The lucky winner of the draw for the metric cope kit was Mrs. Joseph Foley. In closing, Miss Clark commented on the success of the first half-day Achievement Day and encouraged members to join the forthcoming winter project 1979 "Accessories - the Final Touch."

Keeping in Touch

by Jack Ellis, M.P.

It can be argued that perhaps there is too much cynicism in the world. A couple of years ago it was Watergate and now it is the value of the Canadian dollar and the state of the economy as a whole.

Canada's winters can be long and cold. With our current level of unemployment a little stimulus in the economy is needed to get us through the doldrums. It had been hoped that the Budget Speech would provide some of the spark that is needed to get things going.

The Finance Minister was right in his speech when he said "Action is needed now to encourage investment to respond to the needs of the sectors and regions."

Some of the measures in the budget are most welcome. The $500.00 employee expense deduction, the decrease in the Manufacture Sales Tax, the increased incentives for research and development, the improvement in Research Taxation, and the increase in the Investment Tax Credit will be beneficial to the economy.

I was disappointed that the budget did not offer a proposal along the lines of our Party for the deductibility of mortgage interest and property tax from personal income tax. A decrease in the amount of tax on building materials would have been welcome. These two proposals of my Party would have a greater effect than the whole of the budget.

But really, what was the budget meant to be? Representatives in all sectors of the economy see as yet one of another short term, stop-gap type of effort.

In addition there is no proof that the Government is continuing its proposed restraint program in an effective manner. A projected deficit of 34 per cent of Federal revenues is a new record for Canada.

There is no national energy plan and no industrial strategy for the long term development of Canada. It is no more than the continual ad-hoc approach of our Government with its destructive roller-coaster effects. Canadians deserve much better and unfortunately it looks as if they will have to wait a while to get it.

County 4-H award winners were congratulated by Valerie Clark, Hastings County Home Economist, at the 4-H Achievement Day, Saturday.

Recipients of 4-H Provincial Honours were presented with their certificates, representing six years of work, Saturday.

Wrestlers, Basketballers Shine During Week's Activities at CHSS

By TED BERGERON
Although the exterior of many of our houses are flickering between the white of winter and their familiar summer shades, the performances of our athletic representatives are by no means as changeable as the weather. Consistency is prominent throughout.

Glittering in the lime lights were the members of the junior girls basketball team, who for the first time became Bay of Quinte Champions. Their flawless record earned them a by into the semi-finals from which they emerged as 40-38 victors over Quinte. Bettering their brilliant first performance the girls went on to defeat Brighton who like the CHSS girls led their division with an undefeated ed season.

The title winners were led in their 43-32 victory over Brighton and their win in the semi's by Nancy Walker, top scores in both games. The girls will attempt to win the Central Ontario School Association finals on Saturday Dec. 2.

Remaining with basketball but conversing in a quieter tone, the boy's Midget and Junior basketball teams suffered defeats in their season opener.

At a recent wrestling tournament at CHSS first place finishers were Tony Gordon (84 lbs.), Matt Holmes (98 lbs.), Mike Jackson (104 lbs.) and David Campbell (119 lbs.). Second place was accounted for by Larry Parks (127 lbs.), Graham Gough (134 lbs.) and Ross Spatola (177.5 lbs.). Jamie Hutchison captured 4th place in the 104 lbs. class.

Politics played a major role in a sports filled week at Centre Hastings. As of Jan. 1 Pierre Belanger and Rene Carson will moved into office, the latter being Vice President, the former President of the students council. Their terms should be interesting... after all it isn't often that politicians named Pierre and Rene fight for a common cause.

Terminating on a triviality, a survey was conducted trying to classify the garbage which pollutes the lunchroom air. The results... over the three day period 78 lunch bags, 56 apples and 41 other various objects found their mark. Imagine. Can you remember the last time a chicken skeleton flew your way? Not likely!

None the less drop by sometime other than lunch. You could be exalted through memories.

CFB Trenton Holds Talex Exercises

Low flying formations of CC130 Hercules aircraft have been a common sight in the skies over Eastern Ontario recently. These heavy transport aircraft of the Canadian Armed Forces are employed in massive air drop exercises from the Trenton air base. The exercises, called TALEX (for Tactical Airlift Exercise), occur about six times each year at Trenton. Previously held in Alberta, they were moved east last year in conjunction with the move of the Special Service Force now based at Petawawa.

Six Hercules aircraft and crews from 435 "Chinthe" Squadron of Edmonton and 436 "Canucks Unlimited" Squadron of Trenton practise procedures in about 48 sorties over a five day period. More than 200 men are engaged in the exercises which are designed to maintain the Canadian Forces' proficiency in the air drop role in support of the Special Service Force and in keeping with Canada's commitment to NATO to maintain a highly mobile integral unit to support the Northern Flank of NATO in Norway should the need arise.

Co-ordination is the keyword in this type of operation. Preparation of parachutes, each designed for a different task, is the job of the Tactical Air Movements Unit who fit the proper chute to each load, whether it be an 8,000 pound truck or a trooper in full combat gear. The various loads are prepared on special pallets which fit exactly into the cavernous dimensions of the Hercules cargo compartments, where they are tied down by special teams of the Mobile Air Movements Units.

The aircrews, all specially trained for this exacting job, then fly in loose formations over preplanned routes at low altitudes that afford them maximum protection from detection. The most common routes are contained in the triangle formed by highway 11 in the west, Highway 17 to the north and Highway 401 to the south. This is basically the CFB Trenton authorized low flying area. Special effort is made in route selection to avoid populous areas, small airports and farms that specialize in animal husbandry. The actual drops themselves usually take place at Mountain View airport in Prince Edward County or at Camp Borden near Barrie. In future some drops will be made at Petawawa. Special "Notices to Airmen" are published well in advance of the exercise and every caution is taken on board the aircraft through radar and electronic systems to avoid private planes who are usually operating well above the Hercules formations.

So, if you happen to see these giant aircraft lumbering along in exact formation take pride in the fact that the Canadian Armed Forces are busy maintaining their high standard of excellence that has gained them world-wide recognition.

A formation of 3 C130 Hercules practises low level formation flying for tactical airlift. Shown here accompanying a Canadian Paratroopers of the Special Service Force based at Petawawa spill out of a C130 Hercules aircraft over the drop zone.

His friends call him Mel.

His real name is Meleagris Gallopavo, the Latin name for—and you'll pardon the expression—turkey.

He is Ontario's boss Gallopavo. He struts around Nelson Weber's barn in Conestogo. He maintains this controversy about turkey meat—he calls it Gallopavo meat—is a plot.

The big companies are in cahoots.

The Canadian Turkey Marketing Agency says everybody is stockpiling turkeys.

The chain stores say they are not.

The processing companies say they are not.

"They're all stockpiling," maintains Mel. "They found out that all the Gallopavos in Canada were going to take over the government of this country. We figured we could do as good a job as those turkeys in Toronto or in Ottawa."

"But they found out we had one of the biggest turkeys in Canada on our side; the big fellow in Ottawa."

"He's quite a turkey. Some of his funniest jokes have become legislation."

"We don't know who rang the bell but it has cost a lot of lives. They're stockpiling just to keep our ranks thin."

"They've gobbled us up, if you'll excuse the expression. We had 1,432,000 broilers, 849,000 hens and 834,000 toms in this country mobilized last month. Then these guys started stockpiling. Our ranks have been decimated. By Christmas, we'll no longer be a threat. We'll be leftovers along with cranberry sauce."

"We will have been stuffed, baked, boiled, broiled, barbecued, tattooed and had our tail-feathers torn off. The plot has been foiled."

With a name like Gallopavo, Mel loves Italian wine and he was sipping a glass of Colli-Albani. He called it a good, white, dry Italian wine.

"We were a well-organized flock," he said and took another swig of his wine. "But now, we're getting stuffed. It's foul play."

"Can you blame us for trying to get control of this country? We're angry. Did you know that almost every turkey poult born these days is artificially fertilized? Those turkey-jerkers are taking our jobs from us. Even the gals are fed up. They prefer the real thing."

Gallopavos are tired of being called turkeys, he said.

"You people produce a stage play and it's a flop. You call it a turkey. You have made the word a term of derision."

"Wherever we go, we get laughed at."

"Old Ben Franklin was the only man who understood us," said Mel with a look of nostalgia in his beady eyes.

"Remember what he said? 'I wish the bald eagle had not been chosen representative of our country; he is a bird of bad moral character; like those among men who live by sharpening and robbing, he is generally poor, and often very lousy. The turkey is a much more respectable bird and withal, a true native of America.'"

"That old guy knew what he was talking about. He said it in a love letter 200 years ago."

He must have noticed my look of doubt because he took another long drink of Colli-Albani and nodded his head until his comb drooped pathetically.

"They're all stockpiling our meat," he repeated and kept nodding his head. The wine must have been taking effect because his eyes drooped. A huge tear trickled down his beak.

"Now," he said wearily, "they're even bringing in meat from the United States just to keep our cousins across the line from organizing. What a jungle! But remember: it's you, the consumers, who are getting ripped off by all these guys hoarding our meat."

Slowly, he sank lower and lower and leaned drunkenly against the barn door.

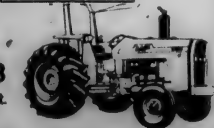

The empty bottle of wine clinked and he was asleep.

Wood Heat Hotline

by Ken Denyes
For Safety Sake:
Creosote
The Cause and Control

1. Definition

Creosote is an oily or tarry liquid resulting from the distillation of wood during the process of combustion. It is present in the gases given off all types of burning wood and in its solid state and semi-liquid states is highly combustible.

2. Danger of Creosote

When creosote forms on the inside of the stove pipes and chimneys it may build up to considerable thickness. As the creosote builds up the draft opening is reduced. When the buildup is permitted to take place over an extended period sufficient creosote may be present in the stack to cause a serious fire if ignited. All users of automatic wood burning equipment should be thoroughly familiar with the causes control and cure of creosote. When these are well understood automatic wood burning equipment properly installed and properly used will give unmatched satisfaction and economy.

3. Causes of Creosote Formation

Creosote condenses from the flue gases when the stack temperature drops below

250 degrees. The amount of creosote deposited in the pipe and chimney is affected by the amount of moisture in the flue gases, the temperature of the stack, the rate at which the wood is burned, the amount of draft in the stack and how completely the combustion elements in the flue gases have been consumed in the process of combustion.

4. Control of Creosote

A. Moisture in the flue gas can be kept low by:

1. Using the driest wood obtainable.
2. Mixing small pieces (preferably slab wood)...with every charge. These smaller pieces should be kept on the charcoal bed first when adding fuel.

3. Never using only large wood during mild weather when combustion is relatively slow.

4. Never adding more than a 12 hour supply at a time.

5. Always use dry split wood in mild weather.

B. The temperature of the stack can be increased by:

1. Insulating the stove pipe extension so that it will be cooled as little as possible before reaching the chimney.
2. Using an insulated chimney.

C. The amount of draft in the stack can be controlled by:

1. Having as few bends as possible.
2. Insuring adequate height and diameter.
3. Preventing any leaks.
4. Eliminating any external obstructions at the chimney outlet.
5. Providing a chimney that is well insulated.

D. The rate at which the wood is burned is dependent upon the season of the year and your heating requirements. Creosote deposits are more apt to occur during mild weather when the draft control is closed

Off and Trotting by Margaret Neal

Harness horses are athletes and require exercise to keep fit and trim. A regular daily regimen is required if they are to provide top performance.

Should a trotter or pacer develop a sore foot, he cannot be trained on the track in the regular way. But, if he does not get regular daily exercise, then in horsemen's language he is "let down". When this happens it may take weeks or months of exercise to bring him back into condition.

When a horse swims, his action in the water is at a normal gait. That is a trotter will trot in the water, and a pacer will pace when swimming. Swimming pools and whirlpool baths for horses are often used today to keep horses in shape without aggravating soreness.

But in 1885 no such exotic facilities were available.

Phyllis was a good race mare by Phil Sheridan and was trained by Charles Wagner, of Dickenson's Landing, Ont. She was due to take part in an important race at the Glenboro track in Cleveland, Ohio, when she came up lame.

The resourceful Canadian trainer amazed the onlookers when he proceeded to give the mare her daily exercise by swimming her behind a rowboat in Lake Erie. He was among the first, if not the first trainer to prepare his charge for racing by swimming.

Phyllis won her big race — and set her lifetime mark the next time out.

The 1978 registration fees for privately-owned passenger cars and motorcycles in the northern half of the province will remain at $10.

For vehicle registration purposes, "Northern Ontario" is that part of the province consisting of the territorial districts of Algoma, Cochrane, Kenora, Manitoulin, Parry Sound, Rainy River, Sudbury, Thunder Bay, Timiskaming and the portion of Nipissing lying north and west of Algonquin Park.

The 1979 registration fee for mopeds and trailers remains at $5, as does the $10 fee for snowmobiles and historic vehicles. These fees are the same in northern and southern Ontario.

In making the announcement, Mr. Snow said, "if each car owner in the province would remember to purchase their vehicle renewal in December or January, we could virtually eliminate the lineups at issuing offices in late February."

Proof of insurance forms, required as part of the renewal procedure, will be available at all MTC offices, licence renewal offices and liquor store outlets throughout Ontario.

We're looking for tough customers who'll ask a lot of hard questions. Because we've got the right answers.

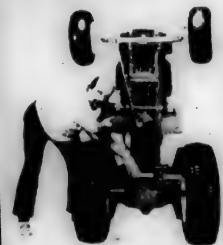

"Ask about the frame: Is it a rugged twin-channel frame like this?"

"Has it got heavy-duty king pins and cast iron front axle? Ours does."

"Ask how it's powered. Ours is a hydraulic system called HYDRIV. No troublesome belts, shafts or pulleys in the drive train. HYDRIV powers the tractor and hydraulic attachments including our reversible tiller. Nobody else has it."

"Ask about the rear axle housing. Is it a lightweight or heavy-duty cast iron, with big, beefy gears inside like ours?"

"Ask. Dig. Investigate. You get really tough and you'll get a Case."

Participate in Canada's Employment Tax Credit Program.

The Employment Tax Credit Program was introduced by the Government of Canada to stimulate employment in the private sector.

In essence, we're encouraging you to expand your work force by providing a tax break for your business.

The potential annual tax credit for each new employee is over $3,000. And there is no limit to the number of new employees you can hire.

Now, by using the experience we've gained so far, we've changed the program to make it even more attractive.

Up to 33 1/3% more tax credit.

The maximum term for the tax credit has been increased from nine to 12 months for each new employee. That means up to 33 1/3% more tax credit.

Greater eligibility.

We have expanded the number and types of businesses eligible to benefit. Now almost every business that's been operating in Canada for a year or more can join in.

Wider choice of new employees.

Now, almost anyone who's unemployed and registered at a Canada Employment Centre for a minimum of two weeks is eligible.

A minimum of red tape.

We've simplified the procedure, so you can do the whole thing, from beginning to end, with just two single-page forms.

For full details on the program, contact any Canada Employment Centre/ Canada Manpower Centre.

EMPLOYERS: CAN YOU IGNORE A POSSIBLE TAX CREDIT OF $3,000 OR MORE?

MUSHROOMS — These non-chlorophyll producing plants live as parasites on dead or living organisms. They grow wherever conditions are suitable, but usually need moisture. Shelf fungi (Polyporus versicolor), left, are common on rotting logs. Growth rings form attractive concentric patterns, the outer or new growth ring is light creamy-yellow or white. They become tough and hard with age. The morels (Morchella esculenta), right, are characterized by numerous pits and folds over the surface. Extreme care should be taken to identify edible from poisonous mushrooms.

Provincial Lottery gives $36,250 to study garbage

What happens to your garbage after it's buried in a landfill site?

To continue a thorough scientific investigation of the answers to that question, $36,250 in Provincial Lottery Funds has been awarded to the University of Waterloo Research Institute, Environment Minister Harry C. Parrott announced today. The funding, spread over two years, with an equal contribution from the federal government (Fisheries and Environment Canada, Inland Waters Directorate) will continue and complete a scientific investigation of the Camp Borden landfill site.

It includes investigation of leachate production -- the liquid organic material flowing through the ground from the sites -- decomposition of buried refuse, the migration or travelling of any compounds, and the ability of surrounding soil to hold or soak up any material or contaminant's from the site.

The Camp Borden landfill site was chosen for study because of its age - 40 years, the type of soil, the pattern of groundwater flow and the general geology of the area.

Any further knowledge gained in this study will be applied to the location and operation of other Ontario landfill sites.

"While we are actively developing reclamation processes to reduce material and energy waste and reduce the amount of landfill required, we must accept that sanitary landfill will be with us through the foreseeable future," Dr. Parrott said. "So it's important for us to continue scientific investigation of landfill effects so that we can continue to improve these operations."

Hannam calls farmers "Endangered Species"

The Ontario Government's policies could make farmers an endangered species, Peter Hannam, President, Ontario Federation of Agriculture (OFA), said today.

Speaking at the OFA's 42nd Annual Convention, Hannam said the Provincial Government's half-hearted commitment to agriculture has forced farmers to live in a pressure cooker.

One example of the low priority placed on agriculture is the Ontario Government's allowing urbanites to impose their life style on rural Ontario. "City people who move to the country think they are moving into a park. Before long they are trying to stop odors, noises, drainage projects, machinery on the roads and other necessary farm activities," said Hannam. He warned that farming would be severely restricted beyond all reason in the most productive areas of the province unless the Government changed its policies.

He also pointed out that because government agencies don't have to live up to the same land-use planning guidelines as farmers, farm communities were cluttered with garbage dumps, hydro generating sites, gravel pits, transmission corridors, airports, highways, pipelines, nuclear dumps, snowmobile trails, poisonous liquid waste disposal sites and all sorts of other urban intrusions.

Hannam said Ontario's half-hearted commitment to agriculture was also evident in their economic priorities. He pointed out, "In 1978, one automobile manufacturer - Ford - received government subsidies for establishing one plant in Windsor. Those subsidies were over seventy million dollars. That amounts to nearly half the entire agricultural budget for all of Ontario last year."

Hannam called on both the Federal and Provincial Governments to change their policies and make a real commitment to agriculture. "If our national objective is a United Canada, a strong economy, a productive society and full employment potential then we as Canadians should literally start from the ground up. The ground on which we produce our food," he said.

The people who produce food are still the foundation of the Canadian nation, Hannam concluded.

Trent U. Begins Course for Members of Community

Trent University has begun a "listen-in" project for members of the community who would like to attend the lectures portions of some courses taught to undergraduate students.

Paul Haefling, of the president's office at Trent, said no formal obligations are attached, no prerequisites or assignments are required. A $5 fee is to be charged to cover handling applications and mailing costs.

Posters and leaflets distributed to many downtown Peterborough stores list the 20 courses of the "listen-in" program. They're in 12 different subject areas: anthropology, biology, chemistry, Canadian studies, environmental studies, economics, English, history, politics, psychology, science and statistics.

In anthropology, two introductory courses are offered, one relating to the whole field of anthropology, the other to archaeology. In biology, a course is offered on ecology, in chemistry an introduction to organic and biological chemistry and in Canadian studies lectures on issues in

Home Gardeners Christmas Gifts

"Choosing a Christmas gift for a home gardener has never been easier," says Russ Gomme, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist.

"With the current interest in tropical plants and outdoor gardens, many products are available that make ideal gifts for friends and relatives."

The best places to purchase gardening gifts, says Mr. Gomme, are flower shops, garden centers, department stores, supermarkets, and hardware stores.

An obvious gift for an indoor gardener is a tropical plant. Everyone likes to receive a new plant, and with proper care, it is a long-lasting gift.

Delivering the plant is no problem, he says.

"Buy the tropical plant, and deliver it yourself at Christmas, or have it delivered by a florist on a specified day."

There are many other gift possibilities for the indoor gardener - hanging baskets, spray misters, plant fertilizers, indoor planters and herb gardening kits.

Terrariums are a good gift because they are available in many sizes, and require little maintenance. Gardening under lights is popular, he says, and kits are available. Another gift for the indoor gardener is a miniature set of gardening tools.

There are also many gift possibilities for the outdoor gardener.

"Cordless weed-eaters are relatively new garden aids, and chances are good that your friend or relative won't already own one." A new hoe, spade, or rake is also a very practical gift.

"They'll be grateful when they receive it, and even more grateful when they have to use it next summer."

Books on gardening are another gift suggestion. There are many Canadian titles, some aimed at the novice, while others explore exotic gardening.

Gardening gifts are ideal because they show imagination on the part of the donor. That makes them personal," he says.

Wood Heat Hotline

and the wood just sits in the stove and creosote stewes out but doesn't burn. So, during times when little heat is needed place enough split, dry wood at a time to last only 4-6 hours. I suggest you follow carefully the directions under "Moisture Control" and creosote.

6. Removal of Creosote Already Formed and Prevention of Accumulation

A. In case a stove pipe or chimney are badly plugged because of operation under improper conditions, the only practical way of cleaning is to disassemble the pipe and clean it by scraping.

B. The small amounts of creosote that are normally deposited can be kept from accumulating by:

Opening the draft control from 20 - 30 minutes before adding fuel. This will increase the stack temperature and cause any creosote in the pipe to dry. In the process of drying the creosote shrinks and the scale falls from the inner walls of the pipe. If a small amount of "KATHITE H" (which may be purchased at The Natural Energy Shop, Marmora) is thrown over the glowing bed of charcoal at this time, it will greatly assist in eliminating any creosote deposit.

C. Regularly, and preferably once a week, place several sheets of crumpled newspaper in the stove of furnace and allow the fuel door to remain open at least an inch to provide ample draft. This will cause the flame to be carried out into the smoke pipe and ignite any creosote present and burn it. If this is done regularly there will never be enough creosote in the pipe to cause a dangerously high temperature when it burns.

D. Remember a fast fire a day will keep creosote away.

For any further information regarding creosote problems, providing a full description of your installation, type of wood used...whether green or dry etc., write to The Natural Energy Shop, Box 24, Marmora, Ontario. K0K 2M0.

Sulphuric acid

From evil spirits to essential products

Ottawa -- At one time, sulphuric acid was believed to have the power to ward off evil spirits due to its pungent odour. In the middle ages, alchemists used it in their search for gold.

Today, sulphuric acid is the substance most used in producing many of the things we take for granted - to feed and clothe Canadians ... to make paper, detergent, paint, gasoline ... and water safer to drink.

Sulphuric acid has more than ten thousand uses. It is produced cheaply with the minimum amount of energy. Its properties are vital to manufacturing, refining and mining.

Fewer than a dozen chemicals constitute what we call the building blocks of the chemical industry.

Sulphuric acid plays a key role in the chemical processes that convert basic ingredients into useful products.

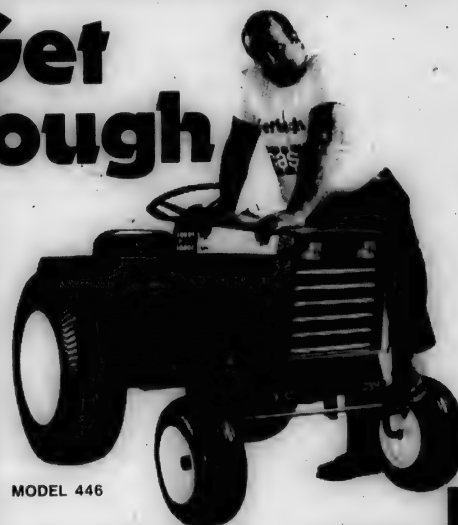

In fact, industry uses more sulphuric acid than any other chemical. Half of the total eight billion pounds of sulphuric acid produced in Canada annually is used to help feed people in its role as a fertilizer.

Sulphuric acid is one of the lowest priced of all chemicals. In Canada, it generates about $200 million a year in sales through 20 acid plants in seven provinces, which directly employ about 1,000 people.

Canadian production of the sulphuric acid is expected to reach 12 billion pounds by 1982.

Revitalization for main street?

The Village of Madoc was offered the chance to borrow up to $150,000 to revitalize its business district Wednesday when Community Renewal Officer Anatol Sywak visited the Village. His offer received cautious consideration by the four members of council and one downtown merchant who attended the meeting held in the Village Council Chambers.

January 31 is the first date upon which the Ministry of Housing will consider applications for loans, but since Madoc is still in what Mr. Sywak termed the "conception stage", with regard to the Main Street Revitalization Program it is not likely it will file the first request for a loan.

The Main Street Revitalization Program has a total of $5 million dollars available to communities with populations of 30,000 or less to encourage the coordination and joint planning of comprehensive downtown improvement projects by the municipality, businessmen and the community-at-large. It will run until March 31, 1981 on a first come, first served basis.

Mr. Sywak outlined the background leading up to the creation of Main Street and explained why it had come into existence.

Seven years ago the Ministry initiated the Business Improvement Area (BIA) program. Under it businessmen could form a BIA and plan improvements to their areas which involved municipally owned property such as sidewalks, lighting, parking bays as well as special business promotion events. Since they were declared a BIA under section 361 of the Municipal Act a self imposed surcharge was levied against each business in the designated area paying commercial taxes to pay for the projects. Trenton is one local example of such a program.

The problem with BIA, Mr. Sywak said, was that it was often difficult for a smaller municipality to maintain its momentum since it would have a limited budget therefore have to proceed slowly, perhaps taking 10 years to complete its project. During that time interest could wane and die. The object of Main Street is to make the cash to complete the project available at the start. The total provincial recovery would be 110 per cent of the provincial loan over a maximum 10 year period. Under the plan a minimum of 50 per cent of the annual budget of the project must be set aside to repay the provincial loan. It is possible that the Village could become a BIA and not take out a Main Street loan but in order to receive the loan it must be a BIA.

Anatol Sywak explained the Main Street revitalization program to Madoc citizens. The program could make up to $150,000 available to businessmen interested in improving the business area.

"There are two important criteria the municipality must meet to be eligible for the loan," Mr. Sywak said. "First, it must have an approved Official Plan and secondly have a property and occupancy standards by-law."

The Village of Madoc, according to one of the attending councillors is not in favor of having a by-law enforcement officer.

"No by-law, no money," was the simple reply Mr. Sywak made to that comment.

"The Ministry is not going to put money into a community without the teeth to collect it," he said. "It would be a waste of money."

A maintenance and occupancy by-law is not such a bad thing, he said. Perhaps it was poorly presented in the past. The intention of the by-law is to protect the rights of a property owner, to see that the value of your property is not decreased by the way the property next door looks. It takes a skilled individual who is diplomatic and who appreciates the intention of the by-law to be an enforcement officer. We do not supervise your enforcement. It works well in other municipalities and it is a requirement for many government grants and programs.

The council must approve the formation of the BIA because should the board of management set up by the businessmen to oversee repayments fail to keep up to those payments the responsibility would be picked up by the municipality. The municipality can contribute to the program if it chooses but it is primarily a project to help businessmen undertake projects which will enhance their business. It will not pay for services the municipality must supply such as sidewalks, but it would cover costs beyond the normal if for instance the businessmen chose to have the sidewalks laid in a decorative fashion.

Deputy reeve Daryl Kramp thanked Mr. Sywak for the information, suggested that it would certainly be something for the businessmen and the Village to look into and said that he would certainly welcome an opportunity to meet with him at a future date after more preliminary work had been done.

CHORD could transform Madoc

Wednesday night a new CHORD was struck in Actinolite which could change the tune of the Centre Hastings area from its present dreary dirge to a rolling ragtime. The key to the transformation however is being able to achieve the necessary harmony and volume.

No, this is not a new musical group. CHORD stands for Centre Hastings Organization for Resource Development. But its implications could dramatically change the economic tune of this area.

CHORD was formed by a group of citizens who are committed to seeing that the Centre Hastings area will have the first wood-fired power generating station in Ontario. A core group was formed to spearhead the movement and to take the message to local politicians and residents who could then, in turn, make their feeling known to their federal and provincial representatives. Those chosen as spokesmen were Bob Maynes (Marmora district), Myke Fraser (Tweed district) Maurice Goulah (Madoc Township) and Ian Connerty (Madoc).

Ron Vastokas, Liberal candidate for the federal riding of Hastings-Frontenac and Dave Hobson, Liberal candidate for the provincial riding of Hastings-Peterborough attended the meeting, voicing their strong support of the project. Monte Dennis, Queensborough, an engineer who is working in the renewable energy field acted as chairman for the meeting.

Ian Connerty co-chairman of the Planning and Development Committee of Madoc Council, prefaced the discussion of the wood-fired generating station with some general remarks as to the state of the local economy. He pointed out that decision made in the next two years by all politicians in the Centre Hastings area will have far-reaching effects on the future of that area.

"Today's trends are not very promising," he said. "We have unemployment that is one-third higher than the provincial average. We have a social assistance rate that is 47 per cent higher than the provincial average. We have industries and businesses closing or moving elsewhere. We see our children facing the prospect of moving away to get jobs in Toronto or other industrial areas. We see the population in Centre Hastings getting older, as more people retire onto fixed incomes. They will form a majority of those paying municipal real estate taxes for necessary services."

"But trend is not destiny," he pointed out.

If in the next 21 years Centre Hastings uses its local natural resources it can

Madoc Public:

Parents want land for school

On November 13 a group of parents met to discuss whether there was a need for more-land for Madoc Public School. They decided that there was, and also to send a newsletter to other parents asking how they felt about the possibility of acquiring the former arena site as additional school playground.

Of the 216 replies the group received 200, (93 per cent), were in favor of such an action, six per cent were not in favor and one per cent remained undecided.

The group has sent the results of their survey to the Madoc Village Council, to the superintendent of schools, F. Tate and to Thomas Burnside, school board representative.

They pointed out that the land, if acquired, would provide Madoc Public School with a playing field, space for organized activities and a means of separating the play area of the younger children from that of the older ones.

"The recommended land area for a regular kindergarten to grade eight school is five acres, while for a senior elementary it is 10 acres. The Madoc School falls well short of this," the letter stated. "There is a high proportion of older students in this school, designated a senior elementary school, having both K-8 grades and extra bussed in grade seven and eight's. The present land is hilly, broken-up and too close to adjacent buildings to have a playing field. It is too small for the recreational activities of the 460 pupils."

Statistics showing that only one public school, a K-3 school in Tweed has less playground area than Madoc Public School were also included in their letter. Madoc had 3.3 acres, Foxborough (K-8) has 16.5;

H.J. Clark, (K-8), 6.26; King George, (senior elementary), 6.7; Tweed Hungerford (4-8), 8.5.

John Murphy, Madoc Public School principal, said that he would "definitely support the stand that we do need additional room."

"The difficulty with a small playground is that although it is partly divided when all the students are on the field accidents do happen. There are four teachers on duty at all times but the school is in the middle of the yard which makes it difficult to supervise. Activities must be pretty limited and during ball season the children must be taken across Highway 62 to the ball diamond."

Reeve Tom Deline, commenting on the letter, said that he could assure the parents that the Village council did not intend to rush into any action regarding the old arena property.

"We won't move fast on this," he said. "This is the only available piece of downtown land the municipality owns. There is absolutely nothing in the mill for the property."

Mr. Deline further pointed out that one and a half years ago the Village advertised the fact that it would like citizens to suggest uses for the land. At that time there were very few responses other than that the land be levelled and used for a parking lot until a use could be determined.

"This is a tight financial time for the School Board but the ultimate decision as to the need to purchase the land lies with them," was Mr. Murphy's observation.

Roy and Elvie Brownson indulged in a polka Thursday at the concluding night class in ballroom dancing at CHSS. Most of the members of the class will be returning to Elvin Carr's advanced class next term.

Greetings to new members of council

The Inaugural Meeting of Council for 1978-79 was held in the Council Chambers on Monday, December 4 beginning at 2 p.m. with Reeve Tom Deline, Deputy Reeve Daryl Kramp and Councillors Ash, Connerty and Pigden present. Also present were Hydro Commissioners Robert Hawley and Douglas Pigden. All elected officers subscribed to the Declaration of Elected Office and the Oath of Allegiance.

Reeve Deline spoke to Council, giving an outline of council aims for the next two years. He stressed the need for a five year plan and requested all committee Chairmen to present their two year plan, including budgets, to Council in March.

Deputy Reeve Daryl Kramp stated he will reinforce council's views and do his best.

Councillor J. Ash welcomed the new members of Council and expressed his hopes for a harmonious two years. Mr. Ash mentioned that he hoped to be put on the same committees as he had previously been on but would do his best in any capacity the Reeve felt he was qualified for. Mr. Ash also expressed his hopes for a good Chamber of Commerce which he felt would be an asset to the Village.

Councillor Terry Pigden expressed his willingness to assist in any way and take on any required duties.

Councillor Ian Connerty stated he looks forward to gaining experience and feels sure the Council will work together for the good of the Village.

Hydro Commissioner R. Hawley congratulated the members of Council and said he is looking forward to working on further hydro improvements which had been begun several years ago.

Hydro Commissioner Douglas Pigden mentioned that the hydro elections were upcoming and it was his hope to be chairman for the coming year.

Tom Burnside, Trustee, Hastings County Board of Education, also was in attendance and mentioned to Council his fond memories of his 17 years on Council.

Conservation Authority met

Several matters of interest to Madoc and district residents were discussed at two recent meetings of the Moira Conservation Authority. A special meeting of the Executive Committee met Nov. 16 to discuss business at hand for the oncoming year.

A motion was approved at that time that $20,000 additional budget be included in the 1979 proposed budget for a major maintenance project for the Flinton dam. It was also moved that the Authority's share be raised by the Benefitting Municipality, if construction expenditures warrant.

Resource technician Doug Leavers explained, in an interview, that the dam has traditionally backed up forming a reservoir which was used for recreational purposes. During the heavy spring rains of 1976 the dam was washed out. The province of Ontario will pick up part of the cost of repairing the dam but as the township of Kaladar is the sole benefitting municipality the additional costs will be assessed to the township.

"The figure of $20,000 is a ball park figure," Mr. Leavers said. "A more definite cost would be determined when the project is undertaken."

The property, a peninsula of land in Hungerford Township at the confluence of the Black and Moire rivers, may be purchased if the Authority can gain access to the land.

Authorization was given by the Committee to the Village of Madoc to do test drillings on three sites on the Madoc Conservation Area property subject to the land being left in the same condition it was in before the tests were done.

A "Hands On" program for O'Hara Mill was discussed at the November 28 meeting of the Information and Education Advisory Board of the Moire River Conservation Authority.

The "Hands On" idea is something the Hastings County Board of Education has been trying to organize for two years, Mr. Leavers said. It is a program in which the children would be able to participate, coring apples, quilting, something that would get them more involved. As it stands now the Mill is a place where once it has been visited it is not re-visited. The Authority intends to work together with the Board on this project.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor

We wish to sincerely thank the Kramp family for their invitation to a Christmas dinner held solely for their benefit in their restaurant on December 6. The dining room, cheery with festive decorations, seated around 90 Senior Citizens.

The staff, working after hours, provided their services free.

Hams and turkeys, excellently cooked by the ladies of the Kramp family, were accompanied with an assortment of Christmas relishes and candies, and a choice of pies and ice cream, as well as Christmas cake, rounded out the full course meal. Mr. Mel Johnson's birthday happened on that day also, and his daughter sent a huge birthday cake to be shared.

Our Group is deeply grateful to the Kramps and their staff for their thoughtfulness in planning this dinner for us and their generosity and effort to ensure our Christmas Season would begin with such a gay and hearty celebration.

Santa Claus visits WI

Amid colorful Christmas decorations, 24 members and two visitors enjoyed the annual seasonal meeting of Hart's Riggs' Women's Institute Tuesday evening, December 4 in the W.I. Hall.

Following the regular business portion of the meeting, President Wanda Franks, turned the meeting over to the program conveners, Kathleen Tobin and Eleanor Fleming.

Several humorous readings, including a different version of "The Night Before Christmas", "The Truth in Parenthesis" and "The Day After Christmas", were read by Mrs. Robin, Jennie Broadworth and Vera Burnside. Contests and games were also a part of the program.

With Elsie Franks accompanying on the piano, the group sang several carols. Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus arrived to the tune of "Here Comes Santa Claus". They handed out sweet treats to everyone and then distributed the parcels for the gift exchange.

Santa was caller for square dance before lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Allan Franks, and her assistants, Mrs. Jack Devolin, Mrs. Ron Devolin, Mrs. Vera Griffin, and Mrs. Ray LaPalm.

Good deed done

Dear Editor,

I would like to tell everyone about the kindness and generosity shown to me when I first moved to this small but warm-hearted town of Queensboro.

As usually happens when my husband leaves for a week of deer hunting, a small household crisis occurred. Unfortunately, these things never seem to happen when he's home!

We had lived in our new home less than 2 weeks when I discovered water rapidly filling up the basement. Being alone, and not knowing the first thing about connecting our sump-pump in desperation I telephoned our local store.

From that moment on, eager assistance poured in. The more-than-helpful store owner gave me a telephone number of a neighbour, immediately arrived at my home and set to work trying to hook up my sump-pump.

After working to no avail, the elderly gentleman dashed to his home at a run, brought back his own sump-pump, installed it in my basement and soon had all the water drained out.

He even had the courtesy to return the next day to enquire if the pump had worked satisfactorily overnight!

I was and still am astounded by this display of neighbourly goodwill and kindness. Thank you Queensboro, and especially you, Mr. Alexander.

In Appreciation,
Mrs. Shelley Daniels

CHORD Seeks Wood-fired Generating Plant for Centre Hastings

become a healthy, productive area, he said.

"But we need a co-ordinated effort of all the municipalities in Centre Hastings and also of the provincial and federal governments to re-build this area," Mr. Connerty emphasized.

The answer to the dilemma of where to begin re-building lies, in his opinion in establishing a secure, available, local energy supply.

Connerty:

No Problem

with Tying into Hydro Grid

Madoc councillor Ian Connerty was in Toronto, Thursday and was able to speak with officials of Ontario Hydro regarding the possibility of establishing a wood-fired generating station in Centre Hastings. He was able, at that time, to clear up several of the questions that were asked with regard to the possibility that Ontario Hydro would refuse to allow such a system to plug into their grid.

"I was told that there was no problem with tying into their grid", Mr. Connerty said Friday. "They are already buying back power from Ford and pulp and paper companies." "They do not feel threatened by the possibility of the project, they know that a pilot project must be built somewhere. They will provide resource information into methods and designs for the best plant size.

Mr. Connerty described their attitude as "very supportive". He said that a representative from both Hydro Ontario and the Ministry of Natural Resources would be subsequent CHORD meetings.

"The wood energy project would do that. Then we could apply the Prince Edward Island model which had spin-off industries such as metal work, die-making, wood by-products, and renewable energy industries," he said.

The wood-fired power generating station is no longer a dream, according to Mr. Connerty. Ontario Hydro has noted the findings of the Ontario Royal Commission on Electric Power Planning and is showing new interest in the idea. But other localities, namely Cornwall and Hurst would also like to see the first pilot project in their area so Centre Hastings must pursue its demands with vigor.

Implications for Employment

The employment implications of the establishment of such a station are staggering.

Dr. Arthur Porter who was the chairman of the Ontario Royal Commission on Electric Power Planning also commissioned a major study into "Wood Fired Generation In Eastern Ontario" which concluded that if this project went ahead up to 10,000 jobs could be created in the 13 counties of Eastern Ontario.

Mr. Connerty stated that the minimum number of jobs for Hastings County over the next 15 years would be 700. Of those he said the Village of Madoc should expect at least 70. In addition the Chamber of Commerce estimates that for every industrial job created, up to four new jobs are created in the service and sale sector. Thus a possible 280 jobs in Madoc for a total of 350 new jobs for the generation of Madoc and district people who are now in school.

Not only will the job situation improve, he said, but at the same time the economy of the village would be increased through sales by local businesses and by an expanding tax base as more young people decided to settle here and raise their families.

How the Process Works

The process recommended by Dr. Porter in his report involves planting fast-growing Hybrid Poplar trees on local farmland that is not now being used. The poplars are full-grown in approximately six years, at which time the entire tree is harvested on a rotation basis and processed into wood chips. The wood chips are delivered by truck to a small, non-polluting electric power station where they are burned to produce electricity. At present Belleville and Tweed are suggested as possible sites for the station but a site may be found closer to Madoc, Mr. Connerty suggested.

Cost of the Operation

The cost of this operation is equal to the cost of importing coal for the United States or Alberta to make electricity, but this project creates jobs in Eastern Ontario rather than in the U.S. or Alberta. Local farmers could add Hybrid Poplar as a new cash crop and new jobs would be created for Madoc residents, Mr. Connerty concluded.

Doug Detlor who has a 40 acre poplar plantation showed Ron Vastokas, Maurice Goughlah and Monte Dennis how much growth could be expected from the hybrid plant in two years.

Vastokas:

Transformation of Eastern

Ontario Overdue

"The wood-fired power generation project will cause a transformation in Eastern Ontario, a transformation that is long overdue," Ron Vastokas, Liberal candidate for Hastings-Frontenac told the founding meeting of the Centre Hastings Organization for Renewable Energy (CHORD), Wednesday in Actinolite. Mr. Vastokas has been an advocate of a "renewable deal for Eastern Ontario" for some time and he saw this meeting as being of greater significance than its number belied.

He emphasized the fact that the political push was the only ingredient missing in the rosy renewable picture.

"We have the knowledge in Eastern Ontario to deal with wood-fired power generation. We have the land to grow the trees. We need the jobs. The technology is beginning to take off. We must, regardless of political affiliation, support the project. Others will be competing with us."

In addition to all the other positive factors pointing to the location of the project in the Centre Hastings region Mr. Vastokas said the money is there to fund it.

"Last July 4 the federal government announced that $380 million dollars would be directed toward exploring renewable energy options. Parts of that money could go to the wood-fire generating station. If Centre Hastings had the first pilot project in Ontario two thirds of its cost could be funded from this money."

Mr. Vastokas has presented the idea to the Policy Workshop on Natural Resources and Energy at the Annual Convention of the Liberal Party of Canada and to the Ministry of Energy Alistair Gillespie.

These are the Hastings north delegates to the recent Ontario Federation of Agriculture Annual Convention held in

McKeown of Campbellford and Don Farrell of Roalin.

Dennis: We can get in on the ground floor

"This is our chance to get in on the ground floor of the research into the technology involved in the wood-fired power generating station," engineer Monte Dennis of Queensborough told Wednesday's CHORD meeting. Mr. Dennis advocated that work on renewable energy projects should be done locally. He said that if Centre Hastings area waits for the technology to be developed elsewhere, such as in Vermont, it will be getting second rate technology that is not specifically designed for local conditions.

In discussing whether there would be a problem with Ontario Hydro allowing the system to plug into their grid Mr. Dennis said that he did not think so in the light of Royal Commission recommendations and considering that they are already buying back power from Domtar in Cornwall and a pulp and paper Mill in Hurst.

"I think that Hydro is watching to see what direction renewable is taking and in the sun."

"If we wait the project will be designed and owned by Ontario Hydro, he said. "If we can get broad-based support from Centre Hastings, the support of respected officials then we will be able to get the money to keep the project at the local level. There are many advantages to local ownership.

There is still more research to be done into the type of trees which would be suitable for plantation growing in this area he said. There is the possibility of disease in large plantations of hybrid poplars, they may require deep soil and a great deal of moisture which would make them unsuitable for much of the area. But the Ministry of Natural Resources experimented on behalf of Domtar to come up with a hybrid poplar suitable for the paper industry, he pointed out, surely they could find a tree suited to wood burning for us.

But as Ron Vastokas pointed out there is 1.5 million acres of unused woodlots which will provide a lead time of 10 years before plantation trees would be needed for the generating station so there is plenty of time for research. The main issue is to start the project rolling with as much local input as possible.

Will it work, Hobson asks

"Will it work?", that was the first question that came into Liberal candidate for Hastings-Peterborough Dave Hobson's head when he heard about the wood-fired generating project, he told the Central Hastings Organization for Renewable Energy meeting Wednesday night.

"But when I discovered that they were already producing power this way in Vermont; that 45 major companies have, or are planning to build such station; the wide range of side effects that could result from the creation of such a project, bells started to ring in my head," Mr. Hobson said.

The bells were ringing for the socio-economic benefits he could foresee, he explained. Being a teacher he has observed that the fundamental question in the minds of students was "to which new town will I move?" when they completed their schooling. This project would provide a new opportunity for those students to remain in their own towns.

"The idea fits delightfully with our culture, being wood and a harvesting type of industry it is not the type of industry that would be a shock," he said.

"When I looked at all these points I had to say, yes, I'll have to fight for this. Someone will be getting the initial pilot project, why not us."

Mr. Hobson said that he would do all he could to put the project before the public and work to ensure that the Ontario Liberal Party supports the Centre Hastings bid.

into the type of trees which would be suitable for plantation growing in this area he said. There is the possibility of disease in large plantations of hybrid poplars, they may require deep soil and a great deal of moisture which would make them unsuitable for much of the area. But the Ministry of Natural Resources experimented on behalf of Domtar to come up with a hybrid poplar suitable for the paper industry, he pointed out, surely they could find a tree suited to wood burning for us.

But as Ron Vastokas pointed out there is 1.5 million acres of unused woodlots which will provide a lead time of 10 years before plantation trees would be needed for the generating station so there is plenty of time for research. The main issue is to start the project rolling with as much local input as possible.

Will it work, Hobson asks

"Will it work?" that was the first question that came into Liberal candidate for Hastings-Peterborough Dave Hobson's head when he heard about the wood-fired generating project, he told the Central Hastings Organization for Renewable Energy meeting Wednesday night.

"But when I discovered that they were already producing power this way in Vermont; that 45 major companies have, or are planning to build such station; the wide range of side effects that could result from the creation of such a project, bells started to ring in my head," Mr. Hobson said.

The bells were ringing for the socio-economic benefits he could foresee, he explained. Being a teacher he has observed that the fundamental question in the minds of students was "to which new town will I move?" when they completed their schooling. This project would provide a new opportunity for those students to remain in their own towns.

"The idea fits delightfully with our culture, being wood and a harvesting type of industry it is not the type of industry that would be a shock," he said.

"When I looked at all these points I had to say, yes, I'll have to fight for this. Someone will be getting the initial pilot project, why not us."

Mr. Hobson said that he would do all he could to put the project before the public and work to ensure that the Ontario Liberal Party supports the Centre Hastings bid.

Henderson: "The most exciting job in the world"

Robert Henderson, principal of CHSS considers his job to be "the most exciting job in the world, if I didn't think so I wouldn't be here."

As principal Mr. Henderson is responsible for every facet of the school from the students and staff to the custodial, secretarial and cafeteria employees. When the number of employees are totalled it amounts to what Mr. Henderson called a "major industry" involving 60-70 homes in the area.

But the analogy with industry does not end there. Like any industry schools are beginning to feel the pinch of rising costs and labor demands.

"The attitude of the students has changed in the last few years," he said. "They are maturing at an earlier age for one thing and also they come from homes where one or more parents belongs to a professional association or a trade union. They hear their parents saying, 'the foreman isn't going to tell me what to do', so when they are told something at school they want to know 'where the grievance committee is'."

The ministry of education wants the school boards to cut costs, according to Mr. Henderson.

"So what can we do, cut off low achievers? No, the ministry says, schools are cheaper than welfare. Cut down on expensive programs such as special education? No, those are the type of programs that have to increase. Technical programs, then? No we need skilled people you must keep those courses."

So in the past two years as the purchasing power of money has declined it has been the teachers who have largely picked up the difference, he said. Classes are larger, workloads are heavier and many have, at their own expense, taken summer courses to qualify for teaching subjects they did not teach in the past.

This trend will continue to grow worse as the number of students, thus government grants, continue to decline.

The problem seems to be that the money comes from the provincial level whereas it is the local boards and principals who must shoulder the responsibility for the quality of education being offered to students.

But there are other alternatives to this seemingly dismal picture.

fighting to keep as many of his courses as he can. Courses such as music and theatre

CHSS Principal Bob Henderson

"Laurier LaPierre has been working on a lengthy study into education and the future of education," said Mr. Henderson. "The United Nations has also published a study. You wouldn't recognize what they see as the school of the future."

There are alternatives regarding energy savings such as the holidays being split so that there is one month off in the summer and one in the winter. Thus the building could be closed up during the coldest month of the year when heating costs are highest. It was also suggested that schools which operated only five and a half hours a day could be open longer hours four days a week.

But more futuristic ideas such as emerged from the U.N. study suggest things like school by voucher. Each citizen will be issued a voucher for 14 years of education to be used whenever they demand it. People could drop-out after seven years, work for a while then return or take courses. Schools would be determined by the needs and desires of the community.

For the present Mr. Henderson is arts are not to be considered frills and eliminated, these are valuable experiences for students who would perhaps not be exposed to live theatre or concerts, he maintained.

Another way he is fighting the increasing rigidity caused by a shrinking budget is to encourage exchanges for his teachers both overseas and within Canada.

Teachers need a change in order to maintain their interest. This must be artificially created through exchanges because there are no longer the new schools to transfer to nor the promotions there once were. So new experiences must be created.

How does a principal maintain his enthusiasm?

Mr. Henderson says he talks to at least 15 students a day in his office. That way he manages to keep in touch with the students. He enjoys that type of communication. As a former guidance teacher and clergyman, personal en-

Huntingdon Council held meeting

The Inaugural Meeting of the Township of Huntingdon was held at the Township Hall at the hour of 11.00 a.m. on December 5, 1978.

The following elected members took their Oaths of Office: Reeve, Harold Thompson; Deputy Reeve, Glenn Franks; Councillor, Agnes Thompson; Councillor, Ted Pollock; Councillor, Ross Twiddy.

The student minister Mr. Bruce Dennis addressed the new council with some words of direction for the future.

Harold Thompson thanked Mr. Dennis on behalf of the new council.

Deputy Reeve Glenn Franks stated that there are no real priorities in the very near future, but that he hoped council could work as a team.

Councillor Ted Pollock indicated that it was certainly nice to be back on council. He strongly recommends eliminating the one-lane bridges in Huntingdon Township during the next few years.

Councillor Ross Twiddy expressed his wishes for a good year and pledged to do his best as a new councillor.

Councillor Agnes Thompson pledged to support the Reeve and to work cooperatively with the other members of council. She also mentioned the good work of Road Superintendent, Ken Tompkins, and promised continued support.

The Reeve, Harold Thompson, said he believed the new council will "get along well" and he felt they should all appreciate good constructive criticism. He extended a "welcome back" to Ted Pollock, and also welcomed Mrs. Linda Graham as the new Clerk-Treasurer. Thanks was also extended to Mrs. Dorothy Thompson for staying on to help train the new Clerk-Treasurer. The Reeve proposed the replacement of the Township Loader; a start on prime and chips for road re-surfacing; and the possibility of installing radios in Township trucks and also a communication system for the Volunteer Fire Department.

Mr. Lloyd McCauley and Mr. Ray Courneya waited on council in regards to the following resolution.

Moved by Agnes Thompson, Seconded by Ted Pollock:

"That the Township of Huntingdon give permission to Ray Courneya to reconstruct the centre portion of road allowance between Concessions 6 and 7 in front of Lot 13 to Lot 14 in order to get access to the property he proposes to purchase (Lot 14) from Lloyd McCauley; subject to the Township assuming no liability as to maintenance of the said roadway." Carried.

Recommended by Ken Tompkins that we call tenders for gravel crushing for 1979. Moved by Ross Twiddy, seconded by Agnes Thompson:

"That the Reeve purchase turkeys for full-time Township employees." Carried.

The following appointments were made by resolutions:

Township of Huntingdon Road Committee, all council members; Township Property Committee, Ted Pollock and Ross Twiddy; Moira River Conservation Authority, Harold Thompson; Lower Trent River Conservation Authority, Russell Sills; Stirling and District Arena Committee, Agnes Thompson; Madoc and District Arena Committee, Ross Twiddy, Ted Pollock, and Douglas Wood; Centre Hastings Medical Centre Board, George Wood.

The Centurion wrestling team displayed once again their prowess and determination in their performance at Trenton last Thursday. The tournament, which boasted more than 80 competitors from six teams (Moir, Napanee, Trenton, Quinte, Picton and CHSS) saw our team come away with four firsts, Tom Gordon - 90 lb., Mike Jackson - 104.5 lb. Graham Gough, 135.5 lb., and Ron Martin at 165.5 lb.. 2nd place finishers were Matt (Killer) Holmes at 97 lb. Larry Parks - 127 lb. and Ross Spatola at 177.5 lbs. The single 3rd place finish was accounted for by rookie Drew Smith. Representing their 4th place rank were John Roeper and Levi Laton at 104.5 and 127 lbs. respectively. Rookies John McCormack and Kelly Stewart were other match winners.

The team will compete next on Wed. Dec. 13

During the past few weeks you have seen, (or heard), numerous sales pitches ringing throughout the community. A common hope expressed is that maybe the sweet face of innocence, seen in the smiles of our salespeople, will be difficult to say "no" to. Being of prime quality the items for sale include oranges, grapefruits, and beautiful Christmas candles.

Saturday evening Dec. 9 Bob and Mary Jane Henderson of Kincaids I.G.A. were hosts to their staff, relatives and friends with approximately 50 guests enjoying a bountiful roast beef dinner at Mother's German Tavern. Santa arrived accompanied by one of his helpers with a corsage for all the ladies, which Bob and Mary Jane very capably distributed. Following the dinner everyone proceeded to the Hayloft where dancing was enjoyed until the wee hours of the morning. Everyone returned home with a deep feeling of gratitude to Bob and Mary Jane for their generosity in making this Christmas a memorable occasion.

On Wednesday evening Dec. 6, 84 Madoc Senior Citizens accepted an invitation from Daryl and Carol Ann Kramp to enjoy a traditional Christmas dinner at their restaurant. There were two sittings, with people from the country at 5:30 and the people from the village attending at 7:00 p.m. The menu consisted of turkey and dressing, also ham and pineapple with all the trimmings. For dessert the guests were treated to their choice of pie, a la mode if they wished. Everyone enjoyed a social time together and were very appreciative to the Kramps for their hospitality.

Tuesday Dec. 5 110 Tweed Senior Citizens arrived in Madoc in buses and private cars to enjoy a Christmas Smorgasbord at the Madoc Hotel. The tables were beautifully decorated commemorating the Christmas season. The Smorgasbord was completed with Christmas pudding and mince pie. Following the dinner there was an exchange of gifts among the citizens and dancing to the music of the Land O'Lakes Cruisers. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Purchase of Sulphide also provided some local talent with the piano and violin. Mr. Paul Clement who is a council member in Tweed played with the Cruisers for the occasion. The citizens expressed their sincere appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bancroft for making their evening such a tremendous success.

Tom and Mary Barton were hosts to the staff of Cash and Carry and to local contractors Saturday evening, Dec. 9 at the Madoc Kiwanis Centre, the occasion being the annual Christmas party. Approximately 140 guests enjoyed a delicious ham dinner with all the trimmings and a variety of pies for dessert. The dinner was capably catered to by the Anglican Church Women. Following the dinner about 50 patrons joined in the festivities and enjoyed dancing to a D.J. Appreciation and gratitude to Tom and Mary for an enjoyable evening was expressed by the guests.

On Sunday December 10, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Martin entertained 12 guests from Bancroft and Madoc to a traditional Christmas dinner.

Mr. Percy Nayler, Betty Ross, Bob Bancroft, Grant Gaebel and Mike Quinlan are patients in Belleville General hospital. We wish them all a speedy recovery.

Ski Repair Construction

If you haven't already done so (and it's advisable to do so at the end of each ski season) remove old wax from the skis with the aid of a torch or spray wax-remover, and a rag.

Should your wooden skis be new, sandpaper off the layer of dark sealer used by manufacturers to protect the ski base during transport and storage. Once you've removed the factory coating, apply a thin layer of pine tar to seal the wooden fibres against excessive moisture. Then carefully heat the tar with a torch, so that it bubbles. Clean off the excess with a rag and heat. Pine tar will also protect the base against excessive wear by ice and improve wax adhesion.

Synthetic Skis

Remove old wax if necessary. Check bases for gouges and repair with synthetic materials available from your local ski shop. Epoxy glues are handy for any scratches or cracks along the laminates.

Bindings

Check for loose binding screws, bent or cracked bails, or bent sidewalls. Replace or straighten bails or binds if required. Add epoxy glue to loose crews holding bindings to synthetic skis. This virtually guarantees that your harnesses will not come out of your skis.

After checking your skis and bindings, equipment preparation should then include your poles, boots and packsacks.

POLES

Check for splits in your tonkin (bamboo)

pole shafts. If present, repair by wrapping plastic electrician's tape around the split area. This will strengthen the shaft and prolong the pole's life. File pole tips which have become dull through previous use. Replace very dull or broken tips and broken baskets. Non-adjustable straps can be made adjustable by using electrician's tape to mould the strap to hand or glove size.

BOOTS

Replace worn or broken laces. Clean wax and dirt off leather or synthetic uppers. Don't use grease or oil on boots. Check sole stitching, and sole holes used to accept binding pins. These holes tend to spread after a couple of seasons. This may necessitate the purchasing of a new pair of boots.

PACKSACKS

If your packsack shows signs of wear and tear, either repair it or replace it. In the latter case, ensure that the pack is light-weight, sturdy and water repellent. If framed, the pack should allow air to move between pack and back, limiting the amount of perspiration and moisture build-up associated with non-framed packs.

Include in your sack: plastic bags, spare screws, screw driver, ski tip, waterproof match container, all-purpose knife set, wax and some freeze dried foods.

With these preparations done, you're ready for the first tour.

Ski Construction

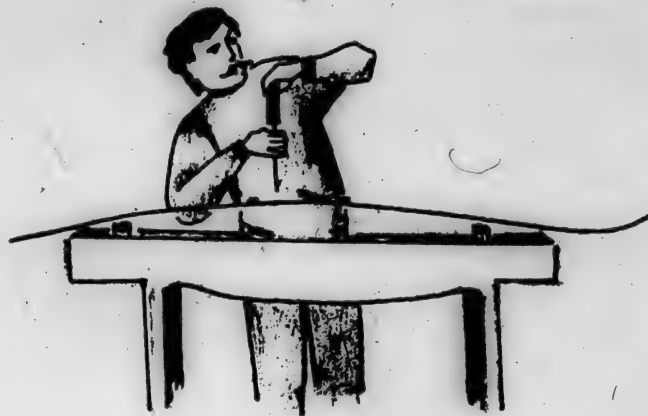

For over 40 centuries wooden skis consisted of a single piece of wood, usually very long, wide and heavy. Because of its single-piece construction, a ski easily warped or lost its camber, or springiness. It wasn't until the 1930's that wooden ski construction developed the multi-lamination system. Laminations are strips of varying wood glued together for widths and layers in skis. For example, it's not uncommon to have six laminations in each of a ski's five layers for a total of 30 laminations.

The more laminations (some models offer 40), the stronger the ski and the more likely it is to retain its camber and springiness over the years. Under normal conditions there is less chance that the ski will warp.

Internal layers or laminations are usually of softer wood while top and bottom layers which meet greater abuse consist of harder woods, the hardest being hickory. Hickory skis are the best and most expensive wooden models. Hickory torsion box method wraps fiberglass around a central core of wood, foam, and air channels. A fiberglass top sheet is withstands a great deal of punishment. When coupled with lignostone edges (compressed beechwood impregnated with resin) the ski will last for years. Because of their cost, buying such skis should be regarded as an investment.

Wooden ski construction is time consuming and requires the careful selection of top quality woods. Top of the line wooden models are now more expensive than various synthetic skis on the market.

High quality synthetic skis were first introduced on a large scale during the '73-'74 season. Since then synthetics have become the only type of ski used by international racers, and have begun to dominate the touring market as well.

It was the Austrians who enveloped an acrylic foam core between upper layers of fiberglass and a base layer of polyethylene (commonly referred to as P-Tex) to produce the first quality synthetic cross country skis.

The most common construction is the fiberglass sandwich. A core of wood or foam is sandwiched between fiberglass top sheets and synthetic base materials. The added, as is a sheet of base material.

The Polyurethane (PU) injected moulded ski consists of foam injected into a mould which contains fiberglass top sheets and synthetic base material. The foam core once hardened usually acts as the sidewall material.

Fiberglass sandwich and torsion box constructions are more expensive and durable than the PU method, although the latter is quicker and easier to produce. PU's lower costs suit ski packages.

Synthetics are here to stay. Quality and reliability have made the new generation of skis a part of the nordic equipment picture.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Eldale Rd. Elmira Ont. N3B 2C7

The warning signals have been flashing for years. Much of the proof is contained in a study that is supposed to be secret but the results have been leaked.

The hog industry in Quebec, now the largest in Canada, is controlled by four companies.

Farm writers have been saying for a long time that multinational companies should not be allowed to gain control of any aspect of farming. It has happened in Quebec.

The four firms, according to Jim Romahn in the Kitchener-Waterloo Record, are Canada Packers Ltd., with 35 per cent, The Co-op Federec with 35 per cent, Purina with 15 to 20 per cent and Nutribec with 10 per cent.

The information comes from a report prepared by Dr. J.C. Montigaud for the federal government. Dr. Montigaud is an agricultural economist who worked for the Quebec government and then in the federal agricultural department. He is now in Algeria.

The information should be of interest to all farmers in this country. And it would make interesting reading for all proponents of marketing boards.

Regular readers of this column are well aware that the writer favors farmer-controlled marketing boards. They are not the only answer for farmers in carrying some clout in the marketplace. To my knowledge, they are the best answer so far.

They have many faults. Such as control of quotas, a big problem for the milk board and the chicken board to wrestle with. They have made mistakes in the past and will make more. But they have helped most farmers.

In Ontario, the pork producers are in a position to stop big business from taking over the production of hogs. In Quebec, if we can believe Dr. Montigaud's report, it is too late.

The feed companies—and who can deny most of them are multinational in scope?—are interested in selling feed. Packing plants are interested in getting a regular supply of hogs to the market. They both support the system that is evolving in Quebec because it's good for them, good for business.

It could be good for the farmers, too, the hog producers.

But it could be bad.

The big companies supply the money and the know-how. The farmers take all the risks and provide low-cost labor. In other words, as the system evolves in Quebec, farmers could end up as simply paid employees.

And that ain't any way to treat a farmer.

The companies control everything from the bottom to the top. When they say jump, the farmers are forced to reply: how high?

Efforts to form a marketing board in Quebec have, apparently, taken on all the trappings of a young war.

The companies do not want a marketing board. They have potential control over the entire industry. A marketing board could drastically upset the present balance of power. The feed companies, too, will fight against a marketing board because they could also lose some control.

Many farmers are against a marketing board because they have seen the faults and the mistakes made by farmer-controlled agencies.

But other farmers see how they could become nothing more than lackeys as they come under direct control of non-farmers.

It bears repeating: marketing boards may not be the complete answer to help farmers stay in control of their products but they are the best answer available.

Farmland "Gobbled Up" by Urban Expansion

There is growing public concern about the amount of valuable farm land being gobbled up by urban expansion. Not only do cities annex land by the acre for housing developments and highways, but they also buy it by the square yard to cover these new suburbs and transportation corridors with a carpet of green grass.

Sod production has expanded rapidly in the past few years, on the heels of the construction industry expansion. There are now some 25,000 acres of Ontario cropland devoted to the production of nursery sod with an estimated annual sale at the farm of 15 million dollars.

While its product is still growing in demand, the sod-farming industry has fallen into disfavour with some of those individuals most concerned about our non-renewable heritage of soil for food production. Each sod crop harvested removes a thin layer of topsoil, and some critics fear this procedure may eventually deplete the land beyond reclamation.

The concern is justifiable, says University of Guelph professor R.W. Sheard, but the argument needs evidence of the exact amount of soil removed during harvest, as well as an understanding of the effects of sod production on root development, erosion control and fertility levels of the soil. Prof. Sheard recently evaluated these effects in a study of "Soil Modification During Nursery Sod Production."

The study involved sampling on eight different Ontario farms, chosen to provide the range of soil characteristics prevalent in the sod-farming industry.

Measurements on the eight sod farms chosen for Prof. Sheard's study revealed the average depth of soil removed during sod harvesting was 9.4 mm per harvest along with an 8.5 mm thatch layer of roots. Many people mistake the latter for soil and thus grossly overestimate the depth of soil removed. Nursery sod is routinely harvested every two and a half years. A sod farm with an average topsoil depth of 25 cm. would theoretically have a life of 50 years.

The depth of topsoil, however, is not a finite indicator of the number of harvests that can be removed, says Prof. Sheard. This simplistic view does not consider the continual mixing of topsoil with subsoil as the farmer plows deeper into the subsoil layer following each harvest. Sod production will indeed change the character of the soil in 50 years time, he says, but not as a simple stripping-off of the entire topsoil layer, says the University of Guelph scientist.

Such a mixing of the subsoil and topsoil layers take place in any type of agricultural production where topsoil is being removed, whether through the harvest of nursery sod or by water erosion in a corn field. It is also a major result of surface mining operations and construction projects which dig into the subsoil layer. Every time a new hydro line is installed, a sewer and water line is laid, or excavation for a new building is made or a roadway constructed, the soil layers are mixed.

The question of mixing of soil layers is one area where there is room for further study, notes Prof. Sheard. "We do not know how much subsoil can be mixed with the topsoil layer without seriously damaging productivity; although greenhouse experiments at University of Guelph illustrated that unless compensating levels of fertilizer were applied, decreased growth of barley would occur as the amount of subsoil incorporation increased. When the fertility of the soil was adjusted, however, there was no depression in growth with an increasing percentage of subsoil. In actual practice, the sod farmer's use of fertilizer would increase so gradually as to be almost unnoticeable.

The soil modification study also included a chemical analysis of the soil on the eight farms which failed to show any important differences between the sod and non-sod fields. Sod production does not increase the organic matter in the soil as much as long-term pasture. Sod harvesting removes the largest concentration of roots, and sub-soil incorporation tends to reduce the concentration of the organic matter.

One of the biggest advantages of sod production is in the prevention of water erosion. Previously published literature says that erosion may be reduced from a level of 7.78 mm per year with continuous corn to 0.02 per year with bluegrass. The University of Guelph study estimates erosion losses on the eight farms to average 0.006 to 0.37 mm per year, depending on the harvesting and plowing dates. Comparative estimates for the same fields producing corn would be 0.03 to 0.94 mm per year, lower than those reported in the literature because of the generally level topography associated with sod farming.

Erosion prevention by sodding is a major reason why the crop is in such demand by the landscape and construction industries. Laying sod on waterways and roadside banks or even on a front lawn, is a quick way to prevent water erosion and reduce the sediment load in storm sewers. Sod also speeds up public acceptance of the construction project and it increases the value of a new home, a housing complex, an industrial basin or a recreational area.

The University of Guelph study concludes with several recommendations for sod production. Most sod farms now in production are located on sandy soils with a relatively level topography, which Prof. Sheard describes as the right choice of land. Gravel, clay or bedrock subsoils will decrease the productivity of the land much faster than if the soil is consistent in texture to a depth of at least one meter. The sod farmer should maintain adequate fertility and should practise deep plowing and tillage to promote a gradual incorporation of the subsoil. The preparation of a level soil surface for seeding will reduce the depth that the cutter bar on the harvester must be set to avoid scalping. Finally, the sod farmer can further reduce erosion losses by delaying the deep plowing until the month before seeding.

Canada, Snowmobile Paradise

By DALE CALLINGHAM

Canada is a snowmobiler's paradise. From coast to snowy coast, thousands of Canadians and winter visitors are hitting the trails, making this one of Canada's fastest growing sports.

Trails and facilities are keeping pace with demand. In other words, Canada has plenty to offer the snowmobiler—everything one could ask from a winter vacation.

The Canadian Rockies in British Columbia are famous for some of the world's best snow. And places like the Rocky Mountain trench, a stretch of flat valley between towering mountains, offers some of the best snowmobiling anywhere.

Key to the region is the city of Kimberley, a quaint Bavarian-style mountain oasis. Here, at the Kimbrook Hotel, you can rent machines and join an organized safari over 320 km (200 miles) of well-marked (and groomed where necessary) trails.

You'll travel through evergreen forests, over sub-alpine meadows and along mountain lakes, while natural hot springs bubble and steam from snow-encrusted mountainsides.

The apres-snowmobile activity at the Kimbrook is almost as invigorating. Hoist a few in the popular pub; relax in the licensed lounge; take in the entertainment and dancing in the night club; linger over a sumptuous steak in the dining room or enjoy a game of pool.

Kimberley also offers alpine skiing and, in the nearby national parks of Jasper and Banff, both cross-country and downhill skiing are superb. Many outdoor enthusiasts use snowmobiles to view Canada's parks in their winter splendor. In Manitoba, for example, snowmobile routes have been designated in eight provincial parks—Turtle Mountain, Duck Mountain, Grand Beach, Spruce Woods, Sandilands, Hecla, Whiteshell and Birds Hill.

Whiteshell has one of the more extensive trail systems, the 320 km (200 miles) of trails are carefully planned and marked to preserve the wilderness for which the area is renowned. Park boundaries contain more than 2600 km² (1000 square miles) of land and nearly 200 lakes. Warm-up shelters and cookout facilities are provided along the routes.

After a day on the trails, relax in comfort and style in one of several resorts on West Hawk Lake, access point to Whiteshell and an easy drive east of Winnipeg off the Trans-Canada highway. The Keystone Motel and Cabins, and the Tall Pines Lodge both offer special winter packages as well as alpine and nordic skiing, ice fishing and other snow activities. Equipment for some can be rented.

Last year, Spruce Woods inaugurated the first of a series of interpretative snowmobile rides through the park where a ranger points out the geology of the area and explains the plants and wildlife of the winter ecology. Turtle Mountain hopes to start the same program this year.

If you want to take advantage of this program at either park, contact the ranger on arrival or, preferably, write in advance to Parks Branch, 200 Vaughan Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba, R3C 1T5. This address is good for general Manitoba snowmobiling information as well.

In Ontario, the Huronia, Muskoka and Haliburton areas offer excellent snowmobiling over hundreds of kilometres of trails. All three are within two hours driving distance from Toronto. They have attractive resorts, beautiful scenery, plenty of snow, hundreds of lakes, colorful carnivals (many featuring snowmobiling events) and several places that rent and service machines.

The Haliburtons are near Algonquin Park, the oldest provincial park in Ontario, where there are additional groomed trails. Sandy Lane Resort on Hall's Lake is handy if you want to hit Algonquin's routes and the hosts will arrange cookouts and guide service if you want.

For lodge or cabin comfort with a touch of elegance, try Wig-A-Mog Inn on Lake Kashagawigamog. The resort is right on the Haliburton trails and features first-class cuisine and disco every night in the lounge. They rent snowmobiles and also provide skiing skating and sleigh rides.

Further south, try Hart Lodge with a variety of cabins, some with fireplaces and a selection of rooms to suit any size group or family. As elsewhere, gas and repair facilities are nearby and ice fishing and skiing are available.

The Muskokas, also in the shadow of Algonquin Park, has the highest concentration of resorts in the province. Almost 100 are open in winter and many specialize in snowmobiling. The reason for this large concentration is that Muskoka countryside is about as pretty as you'll find anywhere.

The 480 km (300 miles) of trails (new ones are continually added) travel through the heart of Muskoka wilderness, country that is completely inaccessible except by motorsleds or experienced woodsmen on snowshoes. Routes go through majestic pine, lofty hardwood and cedar swamps, and over a multitude of small inland lakes.

The areas have many snowmobile events and winter carnivals which feature motorsled races. There is the Whipper Watson Snowarama (Feb. 3), a 100-km (62 mile) safari to raise money for crippled children, and the Lake Kashagawigamog annual rally (Feb. 4) with events for any age and skill level.

Nearby events are the STP Kawartha (Jan. 5-7); the Georgian Cup at Owen Sound (Jan. 13-14); the Fifth Annual Snow Rally 100 from Owen Sound to Sauble Falls (Feb. 3) and the World Cup Series in Peterborough (Feb. 16-18).

The region also has cross-country and alpine skiing, ice sailing, ice-fishing and most other winter sports. It's a popular area, so make reservations.

The province of Quebec is the birthplace of the modern snowmobile and it shows. With an estimated 60,800 km (38,000 miles) of excellent trails, beautiful resorts and the infectious French-Canadian joie de vivre, you'll find everything you need to make this your best snowmobile vacation ever.

One attractive resort is L'Esterel, located in a small village of the same name in the scenic Laurentian Mountains just an hour from Montreal.

The atmosphere at L'Esterel is international-gourmet dining, live entertainment six nights a week, cozy rooms and additional niceties such as a sauna and whirlpool adjacent to the large indoor heated swimming pool. The resort has everything you could wish for after an invigorating day on some of the best trails in North America.

Of course, L'Esterel also has other winter activities—snowshoeing, ice fishing, nordic and alpine skiing, skating and sleigh rides.

One thing to remember though. If you bring your own snowmobile to Quebec, you must join the local club to ride the trails—$20 a year for individuals, $30 for families. You can pay your fee when registering at the hotel.

For the winter vacationer wanting to experience two countries and nationalities in a single trip, the snow-world-renowned Quebec trails now link up with American trails in Maine and Vermont. This means American snowmobilers can reach the Quebec trails via their favorite means of transport, experience exquisite French cuisine and return the same day or weekend.

New Brunswick too, has joined the motorsled world and now has endless stretches of trails through the vast forest for which the province is famous.

Woodstock, near the Maine border, is a small town with down-home flavor and friendliness that is just awakening to its winter fun potential. And Woodstockers are ready to ensure you enjoy your visit enough to return.

One key to the town's rising reputation is the progressive local snowmobile club, The Trail Makers, who have done just what their name implies. In less than four years they have carved out, marked and groomed three extensive route systems encompassing 280 km (175 miles) in the area and linking up with others that spread across the entire northern section of the 72,800 km² (28,000 square-mile) province.

Beautiful Mactaquac Provincial Park, just 34 km (20 miles) from Fredericton, the provincial capital, offers 48 km (30 miles) of marked trails, campground roads and fields, as well as 41.6 km (26 miles) along the Mactaquac Headpond and through cut trails on crown land.

The park also has cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, ice fishing, sleigh rides and skating. For Spartan exhilaration, try winter camping at one of many pleasant sites equipped with electrical outlets, dry toilets, well water and kitchen shelters with stoves and firewood.

Or you can relax in front of the fireplace at Mactaquac Lodge. A fully licensed lounge and a dining room are open daily for snacks, full-course meals or refreshments.

These are just a sprinkling of the snowmobile areas in Canada. Most regions throughout the country have snowmobile trails with resorts and hotels to accommodate visitors.

Quebec's Ski Resorts

Mont-Sutton continues to grow bigger and better with the installation of the area's fifth chair lift this year. The new lift, with a 330 m vertical drop (1100 feet) opens a new area of glade skiing on the upper mountain adding even greater variety to the existing 32 km (20 miles) of trails.

Accommodation at and within a 16 km radius (12 miles) of the mountain can be obtained by contacting the Sutton Tourist Association, P.O. Box 418, Sutton, Quebec or telephone (514) 538-2646.

Owl's Head also expanded their lift capacity by adding a new chair lift for the 78-79 season. The new lift provides access for the new runs that extend to the shore of Lake Memphremagog and gives Owl's Head an overall lift-served vertical drop of 540 m (1800 feet).

This totally self contained ski area near Mansonville, Quebec offers all services and lodge accommodation right at the base of the mountain.

Quebec's Ski East has a unique arrangement which allows guests to ski all four areas on a special interchangeable lift ticket.

A guest staying at Auberge Lac-Brome near Knowlton, for example, would be 10 minutes travel time from Bromont, 15 minutes from Sutton and within a half hour's drive from Owl's Head or Mont Orford.

For skiers going Owl's Head way, contact Owl's Head Tourist Association, Mansonville, or call (514) 292-5592.

Ski East five and seven day ski-week packages are available with five day packages costing $170 per person and including accommodation, meals, lifts and lessons.

Mont-Ste-Anne, 43 km (27 miles) east of Quebec City, vies with Mont-Tremblant of Quebec Laurentian fame as one of the premier ski areas of eastern North America.

The two-sided giant rises 615 vertical metres (2050 feet) above the base village facilities and has a well deserved reputation for having groomed trails second to none in eastern Quebec.

Trail and lift facilities are extensive. There are 29 different routes to descend Mont-Ste-Anne and there are 13 different lifts, including a gondola, to take you back up for another fun run.

The famed La Crete (the Crest) is a particular favorite for the intermediate skier while the steep knee-poppers like 2A and 2B give the experts a work out.

The other side of the mountain (north side) is particularly popular in springtime when warm sun and snow combine to make Ste-Anne the area for a late season ski vacation.

This year-round recreational complex also lays claim to an excellent cross-country rail layout within minutes from the base lodge facilities of the alpine slopes.

While there is chalet-style accommodation near Mont-Ste-Anne, such as Refuge-du-Lac at St-Fereol, the major hotels in nearby Quebec City offer special and attractive arrangements for visiting skiers.

Among the ski oriented downtown hotels are the elegant and historic Chateau Frontenac, the Quebec Hilton and Loew's Le Concorde.

North of the city at Lac-Beauport there is the well known Manoir St-Castin with a smaller but immaculately groomed ski slope right at the lodge.

Skiers wishing to experience the Quebec City ski scene this winter should check with their travel agent or the nearest Air Canada ticket office.

Dogsled Tours of the North

By TONY SLOAN

Big Ernie Bourque lives way up north near Fort Chipewyan, Alberta.

It's the same Fort Chipewyan, on the westerly end of huge Lake Athabasca, that served as the remote western terminal and trading centre for the fur trading voyageurs in the early 19th century.

Ernie is a trapper. Still the traditional livelihood in the region, trapping underwent a major change over a decade ago with the introduction of the snowmobile. The machine quickly replaced the traditional sled-dog team, much the way the automobile took over from the horse four scores years earlier.

Bourque has not only retained his dog teams, he is offering five-day tours this winter for what he believes should be a rare and exciting experience for rugged, outdoor loving people, who also perhaps, suffer from a twinge of nostalgia.

Hollywood filmmakers once portrayed such a woodsy image of Canada that visitors, upon crossing the Canadian border, almost expected to step into a canoe and paddle off or shout "mush" to a team of trusty dogs and drive off.

Millions more have read about adventure in the Canadian North and travel by dog team in wintertime. That, of course, was long ago and, in recent years, only nomadic Inuit, Indians, trappers and Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers used dogs regularly for winter travel. Today it has become a rare experience.

Hence, Ernie Bourque and his Mad Trapper Tours of Fort Chipewyan, Alberta.

This is the introductory season for the tours and while all details are not yet complete, here is the general outline of the program.

Fort Chipewyan is only accessible by canoe in summer or by winter road during the trapping season. Much quicker and ever so much more convenient is via Pacific Western Airlines from Edmonton, Alberta ($118.50 return) where you will be met at the Fort Chipewyan Airport and given a tour of the town.

This isolated and remote northern community was founded in 1804. It served as the most important trading post of the North West Fur Trading Company and remained so after North West's amalgamation with its great rival, the Hudson Bay Company in 1821.

The fact that the Fort boasted a small library prompted the itinerant fur traders, of the day to refer to Chipewyan as "little Athens". The town is no less fascinating to today's visitor.

Tour guests will be assigned their own teams of dogs (two guests to a sled if desired) and given instructions on how to harness and care for these hard working and powerful pooches.

Bourque's dogs are half husky and half German shepherd. Ernie claims they are strong but docile and easy to handle.

There is one area of concern that causes him to chuckle a little when he mentions it and that's the dogs' instinctive urge to chase. "If we come across a moose, the dogs will want to chase it and even I have trouble holding them back and I weigh 272 pounds."

Following the town tour, you head out and overnight at Ernie's cabin on the Quatre Fourches River.

The next two days involve continuous trail travel by dog team between trappers' cabins, where tour guests will also overnight, as there is no trail camping planned for the first winter's tours.

Bourque's trail lectures on tracks and the ways of such furbearers as beaver, muskrat, wolf, fox, lynx, and mink provide an insight into the hunter-predator relationship so rarely experienced by the non-involved.

The mad trapper storytelling sessions the highlight of the evening hours. After 30 years on the trail, Ernie has an inexhaustible supply of memories and experiences to draw on, and he has the rare talent of a natural storyteller.

Mad Trapper Tours supply all food.

Participate in Canada's Employment Tax Credit Program.

The Employment Tax Credit Program was introduced by the Government of Canada to stimulate employment in the private sector.

In essence, we're encouraging you to expand your work force by providing a tax break for your business.

The potential annual tax credit for each new employee is over $3,000. And there is no limit to the number of new employees you can hire.

Now, by using the experience we've gained so far, we've changed the program to make it even more attractive.

Up to 33% more tax credit.

The maximum term for the tax credit has been increased from nine to 12 months for each new employee. That means up to 33% more tax credit.

Greater eligibility.

We have expanded the number and types of businesses eligible to benefit. Now almost every business that's been operating in Canada for a year or more can join in.

Wider choice of new employees.

Now, almost anyone who's unemployed and registered at a Canada Employment Centre for a minimum of two weeks is eligible.

A minimum of red tape.

We've simplified the procedure, so you can do the whole thing, from beginning to end, with just two single-page forms.

For full details on the program, contact any Canada Employment Centre/Canada Manpower Centre.

Study Shows Women Quoted Higher Prices

According to two studies by Wilfrid Laurier University sociology students, women are getting the short end of the stick when buying and repairing cars in the Kitchener-Waterloo area.

The students, divided into groups and researched suspected social injustices. One group found that women can be quoted as much as $110 more than men for car repairs.

The students took two damaged cars, a 1968 Ford Mustang and a 1974 Chrysler Newport to 14 body shop in the Kitchener-Waterloo area.

A male student took the cars to the body shops for estimates. One week later, a female returned with the same vehicles and asked for the same work to be done. The women were quoted prices $60 to $110 higher than those quoted to the men.

"We suspected women were being ripped off but we were surprised at how much" said Laurie Boyce a first year sociology student.

In another study, also by WLU sociology students, it was found that women were quoted $100 to $400 more than men for used cars.

The students involved in the study went to 20 dealerships in the Kitchener-Waterloo area. They followed a process similar to that of the other group. A male driver asked the selling price of several cars. Sometime later a female driver went to the same dealer and asked the price of the same cars.

The study showed that in 50 per cent of the cases female drivers were quoted more.

"The percentage wasn't that high but why should there be any difference at all?" said Dave Lisle a first year sociology student. "We didn't haggle with the dealer so there is no reason for a $100 difference," he added.

Highway 7 Repairs

Highway 7 in the Havelock area will receive over $600,000 worth of repairs next summer. The Department of Transportation and Communications has announced that the contract for the work has been awarded and that work is scheduled to begin next May. Completion is set for the early fall of 1979.

The contract includes:
 - grading, drainage, granular base and hot mix paving on Highway 7 from Highway 30 easterly to Havelock east limits including intersection improvement at County Road No. 48 for 1.1 miles;

- hot mix patching on Highway 7 from Havelock westerly at various locations for 2.1 miles; and

- resurfacing on Highway 30 from Highway 7 southerly to Havelock south limits for 0.6 miles.

The contract is awarded to Northland Bitulithic Limited of Downsview, Ontario at a cost of $637,219.

Increase Gains Level

The Honourable Lorne Maeck, Minister of Revenue, announced Dec. 4 the Province's decision to increase the guaranteed income level for Ontario senior citizens, effective January 1, 1979. This increase in the GAINS guaranteed income level ensure that Ontario pensioners will benefit fully from the recently announced federal payments, without any reduction in Ontario GAINS payments. The increase amounts to $20 monthly to single pensioners and $10 monthly to married pensioners who receive the Guaranteed Income Supplement.

"Single and married GAINS recipients will continue to receive a maximum monthly payment of $39 and $52, respectively," Mr. Maeck stated. "Had we not increased the guaranteed income level, monthly GAINS payments for 244,000 Ontario senior citizens would have been reduced as a result of the federal increase."

Mr. Maeck further explained that an additional 2,500 senior citizens who do not qualify for the federal pension and supplement will receive a monthly increase equivalent to the federal increase. It is estimated this will cost the Province $600,000 annually.

Beginning in January, the guaranteed income level will be $343 per month for single pensioners and $666 per month for married couples who both qualify for GAINS. These rates include the quarterly adjustment based on the Consumer Price Index.

Ontario weather forecast: drifting snow, icy patches and reduced visibility during the Holiday Season.

That's why you must be in good condition to drive under these conditions.

Winter driving. For drivers this is the most dangerous season. Conditions change without warning. The dry road you're on now can quickly become treacherous at the next bend in the road... ice patches, frost, sudden snow squalls, even wet leaves create unexpected hazards. But during the Holiday Season these hazards tend to increase.

Poor visibility combined with heavy traffic throughout the Holiday Season means you must be in good condition to drive under these conditions. So must your car. So keep it in good repair. And keep yourself alert at all times. If you drink, don't drive. And always watch out for the other drivers. Assume there's trouble ahead even when conditions look safe. Help make sure you and your family will be here to enjoy another great Ontario Holiday Season.

 and Communications

Montreal, City of Churches

When American author Mark Twain visited Montreal, Canada in 1881, he remarked: "This is the first time I was ever in a city where you couldn't throw a brick without breaking a church window."

Today, Montreal claims more churches than there are in Rome, with over 300 in the city proper and a total of 450 on the Island of Montreal.

Some 70 percent are Catholic, 20 per cent are Protestant, four per cent Jewish and six per cent others.

A number allow visitors views of history, art and architectural beauty.

Notre Dame de Bon Secours, oldest church in Montreal, was originally constructed of wood in 1657 of Notre-Dame order of teaching nuns.

The church's 30 m (100-foot) steeple, topped by a gilded statue of Our Lady with arms outstretched to the waterfront, has an observation gallery which can be reached by an outdoor staircase.

A small museum in the basement depicts highlights from the life of Mother Bourgeoys in 58 small display cases utilizing dolls and miniatures.

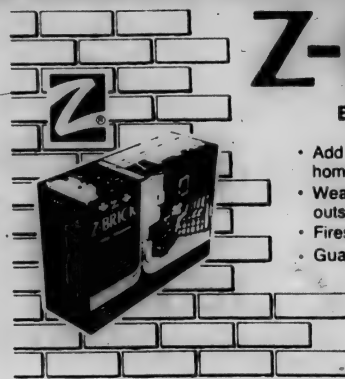

Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal's Anglican cathedral, built in 1859 is the purest example of Gothic architecture in the city.

The church's ornate interior is decorated with sculptured angels and gargoyles.

Other highlights include the Conventry Cross, made of nails recovered from England's Conventry Cathedral which was destroyed by German bombs in 1940, and a painting of the Last Supper saved when the old cathedral burned down in 1856.

La Madonna Della Difesa Church serves Montreal's Italian community, the city's third largest ethnic group.

The focal point is an elaborate fresco in the apse which features over 200 detailed portraits.

Wood-fired Electrical Generation

Recent interest in wood fired electrical generation is catching the imagination of people in Eastern Ontario.

I am sure that you are aware of the proposals put forth by the Porter Commission and others to Ontario Hydro to create a wood fired electrical generating industry. I am sure that you are aware that the Federal Government has made available 380 million dollars for renewable energy developments like this. I am sure that you are also aware that Eastern Ontario consistently has a 2 or 3 per cent higher unemployment rate than the rest of Ontario, that capital investment here lags consistently behind the rest of this province and that social assistance costs are an estimated 47 per cent higher here than the rest of Ontario. One can obviously see that Eastern Ontario is disadvantaged and needs some imaginative economic solutions for their problems.

The potential benefits from developing this proven and viable industry is an ideal solution to our problem. Not only can we create an estimated 3,000 - 4,000 permanent jobs here but, we could become self-sufficient in electrical needs, and possibly export some energy. A key-side benefit is that excess heat and steam power would be cheaply available to interested industries. The potash industry and animal fodder by-products are just an extra bonus.

The most positive results of the industry, from my view, is that jobs and new industry would revitalize Eastern Ontario in an exciting and traditional way as the wood and energy industry, agriculture, and small manufacturing would noticeably develop a more prosperous small town and rural society.

Money will of course be a prime concern in setting up this industry. Several sources are obviously available:

- 1) The Federal Government's $380 million renewable energy fund.
- 2) Ontario Hydro, which is now considering multi-million dollar nuclear developments in Eastern Ontario in order to satisfy their claimed energy needs.

3) Unemployment pay-outs federally and welfare pay-outs provincially could be used positively to create the estimated 10,000 construction jobs, in initially setting up the industry.

4) Private investment could be most interested in by-products of heat, steam, fertilizer and animal protein supplements.

5) DREE grants from the Federal Government should be available.

6) The Ontario Government could make the decision to directly invest in an industry which will be a long term gain for Eastern Ontario.

In conclusion may I urge the people of Eastern Ontario to take this challenge in creating jobs and industry; this challenge to enliven the economy of a depressed area and make money at the same time; this challenge in which both levels of government must co-operate in order to improve our corner of Canada. This is a challenge with which I am sure that we, the people, and the government, can accept and develop to success.

Sincerely,
David Hobson

Houseplants Require Less Water

During the winter, houseplants require less water than at other times of the year.

The short dull days of winter reduce plant growth rates, says Bob Hamersma of the Horticultural Research Institute of Ontario. This reduces the plant's moisture requirements.

Many home gardeners have difficulty watering plants properly. As a result, more houseplants die from overwatering than from any other cause.

Mr. Hamersma suggests checking soil moisture about 2 cm below the soil surface. If the soil is dry, it's time to water.

Plants should be watered thoroughly until the water can be seen dripping from the bottom of the pot. The water that drains out the bottom should be discarded.

"It is important to make sure the soil volume is moistened, but not saturated," says Mr. Hamersma.

The frequency of watering depends on the type of plant, and light and humidity in your home. Plants grown under lights, or grown in bright and dry conditions, may require watering every second day.

Many tropical plants suffer from the dry conditions common in Ontario homes during the winter.

"The ideal solution is a humidifier," says Mr. Hamersma. "However, you can also take plants into the bathroom while you shower, or into the kitchen while cooking, to create a humid environment."

Halifax Old Town Clock

Just as Big Ben is the symbol of London, England, and the Peace Tower instantly proclaims Ottawa, Canada, so does the Old Town Clock by sight and sound tell native and visitor alike that they are in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

It has an interesting history. The Duke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria and Commander-in-Chief of British Forces in Halifax in the late 18th century, had an obsession about punctuality and an unusual fondness for clocks and other mechanical devices.

He found it odd that Halifax did not have a central clock, so in 1800 he ordered his engineer to prepare plans for the building of a Garrison clock and to forward them to higher authority for approval.

However, the London-made clock did not arrive until June 10, 1803, a few years after the Duke's return to Britain.

By October, the New Town clock, as it was then called, was installed and working.

Each year, by open voting, city council would elect "once keeper of the city clock", and the annual report of the City of Halifax for 1857-58 lists the keeper as receiving 25 pounds sterling for that period.

The Halifax Town Clock is unusual for its three-bell peal, one bell for the quarter hour, one for the half, and one for the hour. Haligonians are kept well informed of the time.

Unfortunately, the 175 year old clock is not open to the public, but visitors may walk on the porch which surrounds it.

Canadian Ski Marathon

The annual Canadian Ski Marathon, world's longest cross-country ski tour, will be held Feb. 17-18, 1979 from Lachute to Cantley in Quebec.

The Marathon trail is 160 km (100 miles) long, divided into 16 km (ten-mile) sections.

In addition to entries from every Canadian province and both territories, entries are expected from the United States and Europe.

As in previous years, there will be Coureur de Bois awards: a bronze medal for skiing 160 km; a silver medal for skiing 160 km with a 5.4 kg (12 pound) rucksack; and a gold medal for skiing 160 km with a 5.4 kg rucksack and camping out overnight.

For details write Canadian Ski Marathon, P.O. Box 315, Station "A", Ottawa Ontario, telephone (613) 236-3342.

Year Round Golfing in Nanaimo

Dedicated golfers are welcome year round at Nanaimo, British Columbia which boasts a fine 18 hole course overlooking the city's beautiful Departure Bay, in the shadow of the towering Coast Mountains.

But that's not all the charming west coast resort has to offer.

Geology buffs will be fascinated by the petroglyphs, rock carvings indicating the presence of a race of prehistoric people some 15,000 years ago.

Sailing in sheltered waters around the city is another lure for devoted mariners as are the Malaspina Galleries, unusual sandstone caves caused by wind and tide, a short 20 minute ferry ride from Nanaimo.

SNY-NY-MOS, the original Indian name of the City of Nanaimo, referred to the seven bands who lived in harmony along the waterfront.

In 1851, coal was discovered by a native Indian, and for over 100 years, coal mining was to be the basic industry of the area.

Nanaimo is now the hub of the forest products industry and a major deepsea shipping port.

Its central location and excellent selection of fine restaurants, hotels, and motels make it an ideal base for travelling to other points of interest on Vancouver Island.

Have You Had Your Fish This Year?

Have you had your fish this year? The question isn't as silly as it sounds. For many Canadians, a fish is either a tropical pet or something that puts up a sporting fight on a lazy afternoon. While the average Canadian consumes more than 100 pounds of beef a year, he eats only 15 pounds of fish. Yet, ounce for ounce, fish is probably the most nutritious food you can buy. Four or five ounces of lean fish, as part of a balanced meal, can supply all the protein your body needs. In other words, you don't have to eat a lot to get a lot. This makes it a perfect food for people who are trying to control their weight.

Of course, some fish have more fat than others. Among the leanest varieties are cod, haddock, sole, ocean perch, freshwater perch, pike, pickerel, smelt and all shellfish. Halibut and whitefish have a slightly higher fat content, while herring, mackerel, salmon, lake trout, tuna and turbot have even more.

Trying some of these kinds of fish can be a real adventure in eating. The hundreds of recipes to be found in various popular cookbooks prove that fish can add variety and interest to a sometimes humdrum diet of red meat and poultry. Barbecued fish is one delicacy that's often overlooked. But no matter how you prepare it, it's most important not to overcook fish. Otherwise, you'll find that a lot of taste and nutrients have gone up in smoke.

Because it delivers so much protein, fish isn't really as expensive as it might seem. But if you're cost conscious, you'll find that ocean perch and tuna are moderately priced. In most stores, the perch is frozen and the tuna is canned. When buying canned tuna, try to remember that colour isn't all that important. The light tuna is just as good as the white, and it usually costs less.

The least expensive fish, in terms of units of nutrients provided, are sardines and mackerel. Both are delicious for lunches and snacks. They might not seem as attractive as other fish, but they too can be dressed up in attractive recipes.

When you're buying fresh fish (neither canned nor frozen), there are characteristics to look for. The freshest fish will have bright, bulging eyes and scales that don't flake off when you touch them. You should also check for firm flesh, reddish gills and a milk-fresh odour.

Shrimp, crab and lobster are obvious luxuries, but the same rule applies: You don't need much to satisfy your body's needs. To get the best value for your money, buy them whole, with the shells still on them. Shelled shrimp and crab can cost up to one-third more per pound.

When, as the Food Prices Review Board tells us, Canadian families are spending up to 40 per cent of their food budgets on meats, it's time to consider the neglected fish. In one of its reports, the board warns that Canadians tend to consume protein (mostly through meats) in quantities vastly exceeding their bodily needs. So learning to cook and appreciate adequate portions of one of our greatest natural resources - fish - could be a solution to the problems of both cost and nutrition.

Astronomers Head for Feb. 26 Eclipse in Manitoba

Astronomers from all over Canada and the U.S. are expected to flock to southern Manitoba Feb. 26, 1979 for an eclipse of the sun.

Visibility will be greatest in this area of the North American continent. All the main population centres will experience a period of total eclipse up to a maximum of two minutes, 49 seconds.

Winnipeg, Manitoba's capital, will experience one minute, 20 seconds total eclipse.

Brandon, the province's second city, is right on the eclipse centre line so will have about twice as long a period of total eclipse.

The eclipse will take place during the Canada Winter Games (Feb. 10-22) in Brandon. Visitors planning to attend both events are urged to book accommodation well in advance.

Contact Mrs. Linda Robins, P.O. Box 548, Brandon, Manitoba, R7A 5Z7 for free maps of the city, a wealth of useful information, suggested sites for groups and liaison with the Winter Games organizers.

In the days preceding the eclipse, visitors to Winnipeg can keep track of solar activity by viewing the 1.5 m (5-foot) image projected by the Manitoba Planetarium's Copernicus Solar Telescope. The Planetarium is producing a spectacular eclipse program.

The Manitoba Dept. of Tourism will provide on request, full details and a special road map over-printed with the eclipse path.

Christmas Concert delighted crowd

And who should appear from the chimney but one of the Madoc Public School pupils dressed as "Old St. Nick".

Residents Invited to Committee

The Madoc Recreation Committee meeting which was planned for Thursday, Dec. 21 was cancelled owing to the nearness of Christmas and the fact that the meeting dates will be in conflict with Chamber of Commerce meetings. The first Thursday of the month will be the regular meeting time for the committee in the future beginning with January 4 at 8 p.m.

The recreation committee, co-chaired by Joe Ash and Ian Connerty will be responsible for attending to Arena business this year in addition to its regular duties.

Mr. Connerty said that this year the Recreation Committee will be working in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce to plan events for the summer.

"We are hoping that this will stimulate tourism and continue the Centennial spirit," he explained. "Anyone who worked on the Centennial Committee last year will certainly be welcome to take part in the recreation committee activities this year."

Arena Committee

Waits for Auditor's Report

The Arena Management Committee for 1978 ended the year in a rather disorganized fashion as a result of the fact that some councils sent new representatives, some their 1978 representatives and some sent interim representatives. But despite the confusion over whether it was the last meeting of 1978 or the first of 1979 several major issues, if not resolved, were brought into the open.

The state of the Arena finances was the topic of major concern. However, since an audited statement of the books has not been received from the auditor there could be no progress made toward clearing the atmosphere of uncertainty which surrounds the Arena finances.

The Arena was constructed in 1976 at a cost of $638,477. A Wintario grant amounting to $319,238 was claimed toward that cost. A pledge was made by the community to raise $75,000.

Those are the only certain figures now at hand. The auditor's report expected this week will inform the committee members of the exact status of the project. In addition to the uncertainty over figures the fact that the responsibility for the payment of the Arena is split between three councils: the Village of Madoc, (whose share is 57.142 per cent), the Township of Madoc (28.52 per cent) and the Township of Huntingdon (14.286 per cent) makes the situation even more uneasy.

The representatives of Madoc Township Reeve John Irwin and Gerald Reid were most anxious about the state of the Arena finances.

Mr. Reid expressed concern over the fact that the committee seems to be working behind instead of budgeting ahead. Ian Connerty from the Village of Madoc gave Mr. Reid support on this point stating that the auditor's report should be made in December so that the member councils could draw up their budgets accordingly for the coming year. As it now stands the audited statement would be prepared in the spring for the fiscal year ending in December.

There was further discussion of how the canteen could be run in order to generate more revenue. Greg Rosnuk, the Arena Manager, explained that it was difficult to find people to run the canteen. The problem being that in order for the canteen monies to be used toward the Wintario pledge the help must be on a voluntary

Campbellford Blocks "Ds"

The fate of the Madoc Junior "D" hockey team is being held in a state of suspension this week as the team awaits a reply from the Ontario Minor Hockey Association (OMHA), as to whether it will back its Campbellford branch in their decision to refuse waivers to five Campbellford minor hockey players who want to play with the Madoc team. Parents of the players who were denied permission to join Madoc have written to the OMHA for an explanation as to why this decision was made.

There were seven players involved when the issue began this fall. There are five. The boys told the Campbellford Minor Hockey Association that they did not want to play there but if they were not able to make the Madoc team then they would go back to minor hockey. They were not granted waivers and a fee of $300. to release them made it impossible for the Madoc "Ds" to buy the boys.

"Madoc cannot afford to pay $300. per player," said Brian Armstrong, member of the club's executive, "but we would not do it anyway because it would be setting a precedent for other junior teams."

Bob Bisson of Maple Leaf Drilling, Ottawa, checked the progress in the search for a well for the Village of Madoc. The first attempt was proving less than hopeful after a day's drilling. The men are looking for more than 300 gallons per minute.

basis. This year the canteen generated $9,000 revenue. Once that revenue was forced from the pledge fund he pointed out the Arena would be close to paying its own way.

Mr. Reid questioned the need for the large tractor now being used to clear the ice. Mr. Rosnuk explained that the larger vehicle was necessary in order to speed up the cleaning. He said that if he could reduce cleaning time to 10 minutes it would mean an additional hour's revenue each night.

Mr. Connerty inquired about reported rowdiness. Mr. Rosnuk said that there had never been a problem with rowdy fans. If asked to quiet down the fans cooperated, he said. There have been no instances of out and out vandalism, he reported.

Comments from the Madoc Township representative, Mr. Reid, as to the untidiness of the building brought a rather heated discussion between the two men. Mr. Rosnuk said that Mr. Reid should realize that they were dealing with the public and that the main lobby could be spotless at 5 p.m. and in a mess an hour later as people dropped wrappers and cigarette butts wherever they were.

The Arena Management Committee will meet next on January 23. At that time the new representatives will have been chosen by the councils and the financial statement will have been prepared. The committee seems determined to remove the doubts from taxpayers' minds as to exactly what is happening with the Madoc and District Recreation Centre.

Those in attendance at the meeting were Joe Ash and Ian Connerty from the Village of Madoc; John Irwin, Gerald Reid and Rayburn Robinson from Madoc Township and Doug Wood, Ted Pollock and Ross Twiddy from Huntingdon Township.

OPP Report

The Madoc Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reported several accidents over the Christmas weekend, however none resulted in serious injuries or damage.

According to OPP reports two Tweed area men were returning from work Dec. 23 when they were crowded off Highway 37 south of Tweed by a southbound transport truck. The driver of the vehicle was Bernard Fobear of R.R. 3 Tweed, his passenger Robert McGuire of Tweed.

The men received minor injuries when the driver pulled over too far onto the shoulder and the vehicle rolled over flipping onto its wheels.

The estimate of damage to the truck was set at $2,000 and to the five guard rails it removed at $75. Constable Derick Traviss was the investigating officer. The accident occurred at 6:30 a.m.

Constable David DeWolfe was the investigating officer Saturday, Dec. 24 at 4:30 p.m. when a car driven by Harry Boomhower of R.R. 3 Yarker hit a hydro pole in the Village of Marlbank causing $2,000 to the front end of the vehicle. Mr. Boomhower's vehicle was eastbound when he lost control and struck the pole. He was not hurt but a passenger in the car, Elizabeth Dowdle also of R.R. 3 Yarker, received minor injuries and was treated and released from the Napanee County Hospital.

At 9 a.m. Christmas morning a Marmora man, Kevin Cassidy, was westbound on Matthew Street in Marmora when his vehicle fishtailed, he lost control of it and entered the ditch. There were no injuries to the driver and damage in the incident was estimated by the investigating officer Constable Derick Traviss to be $1,000.

A Belleville boy ran into the path of a car on County road 12, 14.4 kilometers north of Highway 7 Christmas Day but sustained only cuts and bruises after being dragged along the road. He was taken to the Madoc Medical Centre for treatment. The boy was Brian Brady, age 7, the driver of the southbound car was Clayton Whiteman of R.R. 3, Madoc. Constable Derick Traviss investigated the incident which took place at 1:50 p.m.

Ian Grainge of R.R. 2, Thamesford lost control of his vehicle Dec. 25 at 2 p.m. as he approached the CNR subway south of Madoc and struck the west barrier causing the car to enter the ditch and roll onto its side.

The accident, investigated by Constable Gerry Rollins, resulted in $500 damage and no injuries to the driver.

Winner of Fire Department Snowmobile Draw

"We are certainly glad to have won the snowblower, you should just see our driveway," said Joanne Quenneville, winner of the 24 inch 8 H.P. Yardmen Snowblower in a draw sponsored by the Madoc Fire Department.

The Snowblower Draw was held at the Fireman's Breakfast, Sunday, Dec. 17. The winning ticket, number 118 was drawn by Tom Barton.

According to Jack Martin Secretary-Treasurer of the Madoc Fire Dept. the draw netted the Firemen between $300 and $400.

Children Have a Spirit

by Pastor Blair Groves
Madoc Baptist Church

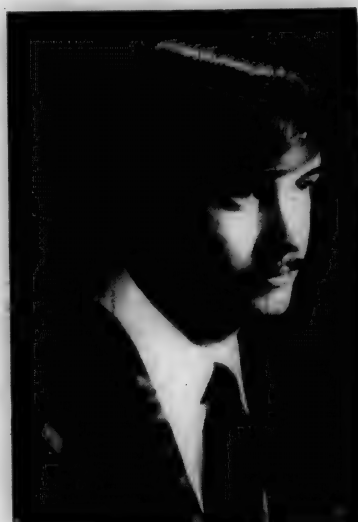

The U.N. has declared 1979 to be the Year of the Child. This gives us opportunity to focus on the need of improving the lot of children in education, law, and the home.

I come in contact with children in our Sunday School every week. What happens to them concerns me. After all the children of today will become the leaders of tomorrow. How much and in what ways will their thinking be shaped by educators? How are they treated at home? You know better than I, that these are only a few of the concerns regarding child rearing.

There is, however, one thing I know regarding children, that doesn't require I have my own to appreciate it. It is true of all people, big and small. Locked within that tiny toddler or anxious adolescent is his spirit. It's closer than breathing. I'm not talking about his emotional makeup. I'm referring to that part of him which needs as much care and nourishing as any other. His spirit can only be satisfied through communion with God.

You are rightly concerned that your children have proper clothing, brush their teeth, learn to say please and thank you, and are taught properly at school. But do you see their spiritual need, as well?

We heartily invite you and your children to join with us in Sunday School where we learn to find this fulfillment. Why wait until 1979. Do it now! Jesus said, "Let the little children come to Me, and do not hinder them...." (Matthew 19:4).

Seatbelts Saved Lives

Since the legislation in January 1974 made wearing seat belts compulsory a noticeable reduction in fatalities have been reported by the Ontario Provincial Police.

According to a report by Sergeant K.S. Cain of the Madooc Detachment of the O.P.P. 279 fewer people were killed than in 1975, a reduction of 23.3 per cent over the two year period.

In 1975 1,197 fatalities were reported; in 1976, 1,012 and in 1977 918.

There was also a decided decrease in costs of hospital care and medical fees over this same period.

Sergeant Cain reminded drivers to buckle up, and when drinking not to drive.

St. Peter's W.C.

The Christmas meeting of St. Peter's Women's Club, Madooc, was held at the home of Mrs. Vera Hill, with 17 members present.

The president, Mrs. Jeanette Raynsford opened the meeting with a Christmas poem.

Mrs. Mary Trotter conducted the devotional service. Two Christmas carols were sung by all members. She read the Christmas story from the gospel of St. Luke as well as a story and poem pertaining to Christmas, concluding with a prayer.

Mrs. Raynsford conducted the business discussion. She mentioned that the Tea and Bazaar had been successful. She informed the members that the Presbyterian Record and Church Calendar were for sale.

Mrs. Jean Scott donated a record of organ music and chimes to the Church.

It was discussed and decided that members take turns visiting the Nursing Home and entertaining the patients.

Mrs. Dorothea Armstrong was responsible for the interesting program that followed. She told a version of the Christmas Story providing it to be historically and scientifically accurate through astronomy and the use of a map.

She explained that Christmas is held on Dec. 25 because it was the most convenient time to celebrate the birth of Christ.

Mrs. Armstrong then read a story "The Legend of the Christmas Candle", telling us that this custom was originated in Austria by an elderly couple.

She concluded her program with a poem "Keeping Christmas", by Henry Van Dyke.

More carols were sung after which a lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Helen Flemming and Mrs. Catharine Weaver.

Merry Christmas was the message of the Madoc Township Public School students.

E - G Council talked winter

The Elzevir and Grimsthorpe Township council began its two-year term of office Dec. 11 with discussions of the chilling business of snow plowing, sanding of icy roads and the removal of vehicles which interfere with the snow plowing.

Wesley Mundle requested that Council attend to the sanding of icy roads.

Council was approached by Wayne Kenney with the request that the snow be plowed from the road leading to Lingham Lake Lodge. He was advised that Council would contact Madoc Township Council and they would try to come to some agreement regarding the cost of snow plowing. Mr. Kenney will be notified as to the outcome of that discussion.

Councillor Eaton Brough suggested that warning be given in the form of newspaper advertisements to drivers that parked vehicles which might interfere with snow plowing on the township roads would be removed at the owner's expense.

Prior to the discussion of the perils of winter Reeve Jack Robinson, who was returned to office by acclamation welcomed his Council composed of: Donald Brough, Russell Eaton, Carl Gordon and Harry Lewington. The Councillors took the Declaration of Elected Office and the Oath of Allegiance.

The Reeve thanked the members of council for their support which made possible the construction of the Township Garage.

The inaugural meeting was concluded with the paying of the November bills including one to the Village of Madoc for the use of the disposal site.

Council will meet next on January 8 at 7:30 p.m.

Standard Church

The Wednesday night meeting of the Madoc Standard Church which has formerly been held in the church is now going to be held in homes. There are many advantages to this type of an informal service. Pastor Fred Boom is hoping this will increase family participation as the Standard Church is a family centered church.

Pastor Boom wishes to invite your family to come and join his congregation. Call him or come to the Sunday morning services to hear where this Wednesday night's service is going to be held. If you would like to share your home as part of this service. Pastor Boom is willing to try to work this out.

Junior "Ds" in Trouble

Mr. Armstrong described the situation as "complex and confusing". The Madoc executive faces several problems: they do not want to risk the safety of the boys who are playing now; they do not wish to deprive the Campbellford boys of the opportunity of playing hockey for the season and they do not want to see Madoc lose its Ontario Hockey Association, (OHA), team for the second time.

"The OHA knows that without seven players we cannot play," said Mr. Armstrong. "Presently we have eight skaters but after a period or two they become tired and when they are tired then injuries occur. We are not willing to accept that risk."

The Campbellford players have been out of hockey for two months fighting with the OMHA to gain their freedom. Mr. Armstrong says he is not sure that this is right for the boys. There are two midget teams and a juvenile team in Campbellford the boys could be playing for. They just want to play hockey he explained so their enthusiasm for the Madoc cause may not hold out much longer.

"If something is not done soon we will have to pack it in," he said. "There aren't five other hockey players in the area who want to play Junior 'D' hockey. There is no sense begging because bodies are no good to us. Maybe the boys in Madoc don't want to excel and play good hockey. Maybe they prefer the bush league. I don't know."

Whatever the reason Mr. Armstrong feels that if Madoc has to fold its team it will be a long time before the OHA allows the Village another chance. This is the second attempt Madoc has made to keep a senior hockey team in the Village. The last time was in 1966-67 when the team won the championship then folded the next year through lack of interest.

At present there are six teams in the league. Madoc draws good crowds and for that reason has been allowed the second chance at keeping a team going.

"The matter is out of our hands," said Mr. Armstrong. "It is up to the OMHA now. Parents are to be notified of their decision some time during the school break. The final word as to the fate of Madoc's team lies in the balance."

Madoc Winner

In the recent draw of King Pin Blind Bowlers of Syracuse N.Y. John Mah of Madoc won the first prize of $100. Seller of the ticket was Valerie Whiteman.

A lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants Mrs. Dave Kernohan, Mrs. Delbert Carman and Mrs. Beatty. A social hour was enjoyed.

by ROY CALDWELL

The problem of war is the problem of violence. The senselessness of destroying homes and human lives is the ultimate in human futility.

Added to this are the homeless children, the starvation and disease and the destruction of truth.

The scientific debauchery of modern war is above human imagination, except that it actually happens. Such things border on the insane, the lunatic fringe, but it is not abnormal, because everyone in it is doing the same.

Prayer for Peace

The shock of such things affects the victor and the vanquished alike. Unknown generations are affected by such violence and destruction because violence begets violence and those who kill by the sword will be killed by the sword.

At Christmas time, may our prayer ever be "May there be peace in our land and throughout the whole world."

A Religious Sculpture at ROM

Religious sculpture, especially that of the Madonna and Child, takes on a special significance at Christmas. The Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, displays remarkable Mediaeval and Renaissance works of sculpture which depict the Mother and Christ Child theme.

Surprisingly, while the Virgin holding the infant Jesus was a favourite and common subject among Renaissance artists and those of the Middle Ages, their work is, nevertheless, tremendously diverse!

The ROM collections show that in early Mediaeval times, the Madonna and Child were rendered in an aloof fashion. The Madonna is portrayed as a remote, austere, Queen of Heaven and the Child as a rigid, small adult.

By the middle of the 14th century, the Madonna and Infant are treated in a much more compassionate style. A Gothic statue of the Virgin and Child in the Museum's European Galleries shows this different artistic treatment. Mary wears a crown, emphasizing that she is still Queen of Heaven, but the smile on her face as she turns to her baby, cradled in her left arm, proclaims a new understanding of her motherhood. The Child, too, is shown in natural terms. With one hand, He reaches up to tickle his Mother under the chin - a universally understood gesture reflecting the tender relationship between them.

The warmth and feeling rendered in the sculptures of the 14th century and later shows a growing awareness of the complex concept of Incarnation. The Gospel of St. John speaks of the "Word made Flesh" - of God assuming the nature of man through Jesus Christ. Gradually, artists realized that they could translate this doctrine of Incarnation by sculpting the Saviour and His Mother in natural and compassionate terms. By sculpting Jesus and Mary in humane ways, they, in effect, "brought them down to earth".

This development extended to the Renaissance period and is well demonstrated in a number of expressive stucco and terracotta reliefs made in Italy during the 15th century. One of the most captivating reliefs at the ROM shows the Holy Child nestled in His Mother's arm, with His left arm resting on her shoulder. The Madonna leans her head toward His cheek in a gesture of warmth and infinite love. This particular relief was probably the product of some anonymous Florentine workshop. The original from which it derives may have been the work of Lorenzo Ghiberti, one of the best-known sculptors of 15th century Florence.

One of the most endearing depictions of the Madonna and Child in the ROM collection is a handsome glazed terracotta rondel (a round plaque) dated to the late 15th century, from the workshop of Andrea della Robbia. The Virgin is shown kneeling with her hands held in prayer while the Child lies on a pallet of straw. A decorative wreath borders the plaque. The symbols in the wreath include: grapes for the blood of Christ, pomegranates for the unity of the Church, and pears alluding to the love of Christ for Mankind. The wreath itself may be seen as a Christian symbol of triumph and eternity.

Statues of the Madonna and Child and the Nativity Scene can be viewed with an art-historian's eye. At Christmas, however, religious cultures are probably more meaningful when seen as the Mediaeval and Renaissance artists intended them - as conveying the same message the angels brought down with them on that first Christmas: Glory to God in the Highest and On Earth, Peace to Men of Good Will!

This outstanding late Gothic sculpture of the Virgin and Child emanates the Christmas message of love and good-will. The Virgin is portrayed as a gentle and tender mother while the baby Jesus reaches out, in a very natural gesture, to tickle his mother under the chin. This limestone Madonna, made in France around 1350, is just one example of the sculptures that reflect the Christmas spirit in the European Galleries of the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto.

At the Schoolhouse

by Naomi Wakan

It is now the season of the stove, or rather the non-stove for yet another winter is upon us and we have still not decided on the most appropriate form of wood-stove for the school-house.

We pour over the pamphlets comparing the different claims of the stove firms. The heating capacity for some are given in sq. ft. and we picture the stove heating a cross-section of air somewhere between the floor and our 12 foot ceilings.

We really need a stove for the sauna, and a stove for the basement, a cook-stove and a fireplace stove. I see them all as necessary. My major adjustment problem on emigrating from England was how to arrange the furniture in a room if there was no fire-place. So I am demanding a fire-place stove. Also my grandmother toiled over a cook-stove and the memories come flooding back - a cook-stove is essential. I come upon another, this time an elegant little stove with fancy enamel work and lion's claw feet. I am charmed and think it would be perfect in the bedroom. By this time it is clear to Eli that emotion is clouding the intellect in my judgement and I am banished to another room, whilst he sorts out our needs in a more orderly fashion.

Several hours later, he appears, looking as though he has been wrestling with the Universe, to announce his choice. It is not several stoves, as I had hoped, but one furnace that will replace our existing one. I am aghast. It is twice the price we can afford and only burns 8 hours. It is big, heavy, ugly and only 80percent efficient. We look at each other, it is now very late and we are barely 25 percent efficient. We retire to the bedroom put the thermostat down and realising that the perfect heating system is as elusive as ever, settle down to dream of tropical beaches and equatorial homesteads.

MOT Moves to Cut Down Tailgating with New Law

In an effort to cut down tailgating by commercial vehicles, trucks travelling over 60 kilometres an hour on Ontario roads will be forbidden to follow any vehicle closer than 60 metres or approximately 200 feet.

And any drivers convicted of a third, or more, drinking and driving charge will lose their licences for a minimum of three years.

These new amendments to The Highway Traffic Act were included in Bill 150 which received third and final reading last week, said Minister of Transportation and Communications James Snow today.

"For example, in response to the Government's major campaign against drinking and driving, we have set a mandatory three-year driving licence suspension for anyone convicted of a third, or more drinking and driving charge under the Criminal Code of Canada."

"And it is now a specific offence to drive a motor vehicle in contravention of conditions contained in the licence or imposed by the regulations," Snow pointed out, adding, "This affects a person who is driving without glasses when his licence requires that he do so."

Snow went on to describe an important clarification of overtaking and passing at a pedestrian crossover.

"The law now makes it illegal for the driver of the vehicle approaching from the rear to move beyond the front of the vehicle being overtaken."

"We have also plugged a loophole in respect to commercial traffic on highways. In recent years, many municipal boundaries have moved beyond built-up areas leaving high-speed sections of highway not covered specifically by sections of the HTA."

"Where necessary," Snow continued, "we have changed the reference from highways 'outside a city, town or village' to cover all highways where the maximum speed limit is more than 60 kilometres per hour."

"An important section affected by this change is that which prohibits commercial vehicles from following one another closer than 60 metres. To prevent tailgating by commercial vehicles generally, we have broadened this section to include the following of any vehicle if the truck is moving at over 60 kilometres per hour."

"We have also broadened the means by which police officers can carry out the emergency closing of highways. Prior to this, policemen had to be physically present on the scene and in situations where major storms covered a substantial area, it was difficult to position police officers at all strategic points."

"Under the new regulations," Snow pointed out, "the police can close a highway by posting signs or erecting traffic barriers and will have the power to enlist the assistance of highway maintenance personnel to carry out the necessary work."

"And I would like to mention another amendment which allows aircraft that have made an emergency landing on a highway to take off again from the highway."

"Prior to this, any aircraft that did so - even because of weather conditions or lack of fuel - often had to be disassembled, trucked in pieces to an airport, reassembled and recertified as airworthy by Transport Canada at a cost of thousands of dollars."

"Now we are going to allow a take-off under tightly-controlled conditions," Snow pointed out. "Not only must the pilot be satisfied of the airworthiness of the plane, but this must also be confirmed by a commercial licensed pilot who is not the owner of the craft and qualified to fly that class and category of aircraft."

"In addition, weather conditions must be suitable, there must be no obstructions on the highway and there must be proper police control of traffic," Snow said.

"Finally, an amendment allows for a left-hand turn on a red light - after coming to a stop - from a one-way street to another one-way street."

Kawartha Internationals Coming Up Soon

The Kawartha International Snowmobiling Ltd. have put together another thrill packed weekend for the upcoming Kawartha Internationals Jan. 5, 6 and 7 in Peterborough.

To start things rolling some of the world's top drivers on the fastest sleds will perform Friday, Jan. 5th from 6:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the Sno Pro Hot Lapping event, and shortly after 9 a.m. on Saturday, the mammoth Junior Chamber of Commerce Parade is scheduled to travel down George Street to the track. There are 22 classes in the races scheduled for Saturday and Sunday with trophies and purses in each class.

A glimpse of the history of snowmobiling will be a feature this year at the half-time show. Fans will see Bombardier's machine number one, the machine that started the sport of snowmobiling. Also there will be a version of the millionth machine that rolled off the Ski-Doo assembly line in 1974, plus a model of the unique side-by-side snowmobile.

On January 6th, world renowned stuntman Jimmy "Crash" Moreau the Maine Maniac, will attempt to jump ramp to ramp over the roofs of eight cars for a Canadian Snowmobile ramp to jump record. Jim who hails from Bangor, Maine, single and only 30 years old has been a professional stuntman for 15 years, will attempt to take his snowmobile which has not been modified in any way for jumping, off a take-off ramp that is eight feet high and thirty-six feet long, leap over eight cars parked side by side on the race surface and lands on another ramp.

He wears no protective gear except a crash helmet and so he would be in serious trouble if he fails to get the exact speed required to make the jump. A speed of 3 m.p.h. too slow and Jim will crash on top of the new automobiles and a speed 3 m.p.h. too fast and he will land on the ice surface. If his balance is not perfect when taking off, a serious side over side crash could occur. He is required to land somewhere on the ramp and have control over the sled at all times and at no time leave the sled, except when it stops, to complete the Canadian record jump. If he sets a Canadian record on Saturday, Jim will attempt to break his own record on Sunday afternoon.

St. John Warning on Winter Dangers

Winter days can turn mean quickly when the weather changes or when you've travelled a long way from help on your skis or snowmobile and an accident happens. Bill Melville says if you think ahead a bit before you start on a cold weather outing, you can probably prevent trouble or at least be prepared to deal with it if it comes. Mr. Melville is a northerner who knows how to work in the cold. He's Area Commissioner for St. John Ambulance and an expert on

First Aid. He's also a purchasing agent for Ontario Hydro, and has done his share of following the route of power lines in some bleak chilly parts of Ontario.

He says, "You've got to look ahead when you're going out into inclement weather. Prepare for the worst, no matter how good the weather is when you start out, prepare for the way back and for emergencies."

"We carry blankets or sleeping bags in the car all winter. We always have matches and a flashlight in the glove compartment, and two or three chocolate bars. I carry sand and a shovel, flares, and an axe to cut firewood, because if you're really stranded you can't leave the car motor running. Even if you only leave it on 15 minutes at a time, you'll soon be out of gas. And I carry a First Aid kit."

If you're going skiing, snowmobiling, skating outdoors, dress for it, wear a face mask and carry extra clothes if there's a chance the weather will get colder as the day goes on.

Find out what the wind chill factor is, especially if you're driving a snowmobile. On a still day, when the temperature is 10 degrees above zero (minus 12 celsius), if you are travelling 30 miles an hour, (50 km), the wind chill factor is 33 degrees below zero (minus 36 celsius).

Mr. Melville recommends, "Dress in clothing that breathes. Clothes should be loose when that's possible, warm but letting air circulate. If you wear insulated clothes and perspire inside them when you get out in the cold, that will freeze. And don't wear tight clothes that will cut off circulation."

It's not wise to go too far afield alone, either. If you do have an accident, you'll need someone to help. And you should use a buddy system to keep an eye on one another for signs of frostbite.

You may not know your nose or ears are frostbitten, or your feet, especially if you're wearing tight boots or skates. But you can see frostbite, the afflicted area shows as waxy white and hard.

The best treatment is a gradual warming by body warmth. Put a warm hand over ears or nose. Tuck frostbitten hands and fingers under your armpits, inside your jacket until they get warm. Don't rub frostbite; don't put ice, snow or cold on it and don't apply heat.

Severe frostbite is cold and sensitive, and will appear white and hard as wood. It must have medical attention. Get the victim to medical help as fast as possible, and don't let the frozen area thaw. The first aid in this case is don't thaw, and get to the hospital.

And says Mr. Melville, if you are stranded in the cold and have to wait for help, keep moving to keep your blood circulating.

St. John Ambulance safety oriented first aid training teaches people how to avoid accidents as well as teaching them what to do to save life and minimize injury when an accident does happen. St. John offers a two and a half hour Lifesaver First Aid course that is taught in one session, as well as more extensive eight and sixteen hour courses.

CHIP Has Awarded $6000,000 in Grants

Homeowners in Ontario have received a total of $6,859,738.00 in grants awarded under the Canadian Home Insulation Program (C.H.I.P.). Ontario C.H.I.P. Co-ordinator, Arnie Rose, announced today.

As of December 1978, 43,011 applications were received from Ontario and 31,675 cheques have been issued to financially assist the re-insulation of older homes.

C.H.I.P. has been operating for fifteen months since its introduction by the federal government in September 1977. Under its provisions, houses built before 1946 are presently eligible for a rebate of two thirds of the material cost of insulating up to a maximum grant of $350.00. All houses built prior to September 1, 1977, will eventually be covered by C.H.I.P. before the program finishes in December 1984.

Since the program's inception, more than 151,000 Ontario homeowners have requested and received C.H.I.P. application forms and information kits. These may be obtained by telephoning the C.H.I.P. Ontario office at 416-789-0671 (charges on collect calls are accepted) or by writing to C.H.I.P., P.O. Box 1270, Station "T", Toronto, Ontario. M6B 4A4.

Snowmobiling increased by 25% since 1975

Since 1975, participation in the sport of snowmobiling has increased by 25 per cent in Canada and the United States. Yet, at the same time, snowmobile related fatalities have decreased by 37 per cent. The reduction in accidents and significantly improved safety record are due to better educated riders, improved and more plentiful trails and technological advancements in increasing the safety of the machines.

In the most recent consumer product hazard listing produced by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, snowmobiling hazard has dropped from a low ranking no. 51 in a previous report to an even lower no. 86. Biking (the peddled variety) ranked no. 1; baseball no. 4; basketball no. 12; snow-skiing no. 41; ice skating no. 51; tennis and badminton no. 61 and golf no. 72.

Provinces now offering snowmobile operator safety training programs are Ontario and Quebec with numerous programs available in the United States. Provincial and State safety education programs usually include both classroom and field instruction. In most cases, snowmobile instruction is provided by volunteers usually from the ranks of snowmobile associations and clubs. In addition to covering such topics as maintenance and machine operation, proper riding positions, proper clothing, terrain, weather and wind conditions, the programs stress environmental awareness, skill, courtesy, judgement and common sense.

Trails are the key to increased safety in the sport as inadequate trail facilities increase the risk of accidents with hazards such as: cables and guy wires, fences, barbed wire, unsafe ice, hidden rocks, tree stumps, low hanging branches.

Swim Mill Aids Biological Research

A swim mill, the water equivalent of a wind tunnel or a treadmill, is opening opportunities for several additional lines of biological research at the University of Guelph. It may also challenge members of local swimming teams.

Looking like a modest sized swimming pool with a glass side, and equipped with a 50 h.p. hydraulic turbine system, the swim mill can create water speeds of up to two metres per second. At that speed only a world champion human swimmer or an average seal can hold his own against the current.

The tank, with its return tank and circulating pipes beneath the floor, holds 50,000 litres of water. The control panel permits the operator to select the water speed and the water temperature.

The first use of the recently installed facility, which is one of only eight in Canada, was to test the stress of exercise in water on a human subject. Science has had accurate measurements of such human activities as walking and jogging, says Professor Brian Wilson, of the University of Guelph's department of human kinetics, but not of swimming.

Prof. Wilson, suggest that other research projects with the swim mill might well include studying the effect of different swimming strokes on fat metabolism and body composition changes in middle aged and elderly humans. He is also planning a joint project with the University of Waterloo to study human physiological adaptation to training in water.

Local swim clubs have indicated interest in using the swim mill for training on weekends, if any free time is available. In addition, since water temperature can be controlled, the swim mill might be used to test human survival equipment and the stress cause by water temperature and turbulence.

Professor E.D. Stevens of the department of zoology plans to use the swim mill to study the effects of body size and temperature on the hydrodynamics of fish swimming. Using cine-analysis (photography by high speed movie cameras), he will study fish from five cm to 70 cm in length.

Professor Keith Ronald, dean of the college of biological science at the University of Guelph, is conditioning harp seals for research in the swim mill. He plans to simulate the annual 5,000 kilometer migration of the harp seal herds between the high arctic and the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

"The seal's energy requirements and swimming ability are not known," he says. "It is very important to know, therefore, how much energy and how much food the harp seal requires. We will then know how much the seal competes with man as to the amount of food it takes."

The seal studies will use radio telemetry, gathering data through sensitive electronic sensors in a capsule that the seal swallows.

The animal's heart rate, body temperature and physical activity can be recorded for about 18 hours with a single capsule. After that time the capsule is expelled from the animal's body. The batteries can then be replaced and the capsule re-used.

Changes in the seal's muscle structure, blood composition, and the effects of pollutants will also be examined. In the first trials, the researchers have observed that in response to high water speeds the seal elongates its body, thus becoming more streamlined and offering less water resistance.

Gadgets Don't Really Save Fuel

Consumers still believe devices supposed to "jet assist" cars engines, "convert air into energy" and save gasoline. Few of these devices live up to these claims. Six gadgets ranging in price from $2.95 to $30.00 are: air-bleed valves, which add extra air to the air-fuel mixture; an ignition spark intensifier; a fuel-pressure regulator; capacitive-discharge (CD) ignition system.

All promise easier engine starting, smoother running, "blazing" pick-up, longer engine life, and reduced emissions. The main theme is more miles per gallon. If the claim seems too good to believe - don't. None of these gadgets after test lived up to their promise. The capacitive-discharge ignition, might make spark plugs and distributor points last longer.

The one way to increase a car's gas mileage without adding gadgets is by driving sensibly.

Here are some economy tips:
- After starting cold engine, drive off at moderate speed as soon as engine is running smoothly, when the engine is cold and the choke is on, fuel consumption is very high.

Driving off immediately warms the engine up faster.

- Avoid fast starts and hard braking.
- Maintain steady, moderate speeds on highway because high speeds mean higher costs in gas.

- Keep tires correctly inflated.
- Keep the engine tuned up - misfiring spark plugs or a clogged air filter can waste fuel too.

- Don't use the trunk as storage compartment - heavy weight uses much fuel.
- If you also have a removable roof rack take it off when not in use because it causes considerable wind resistance and increases gas consumption.

Winter Mulches Protect Plants Against Tough Ontario Winters

To protect plants against the rigors of an Ontario winter, many horticulturists recommend using winter mulches.

Mulches are used to moderate soil temperatures, and to prevent freezing and thawing, according to Bob Fleming, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist. Freeze and thaw cycles can cause roots to heave, and plants may dry out.

Snow cover sometimes provides plants adequate protection against the cold, but good snow cover cannot be depended upon in some parts of the province. To protect tender garden perennials, including roses,

Mr. Fleming recommends using a 15 to 20 cm layer of mulch. Materials such as straw, strawy manure, or evergreen boughs make good mulches.

For best results from mulch, apply it after the ground has frozen 2 to 5 cm. Tender plants, kept cold by a well-placed mulch, will winter more successfully than similar plants exposed to fluctuations in temperature. Mulching too early may attract mice and other rodents, and result in damage to plants.

"Don't be in a hurry to remove the mulch early in the spring," advises Mr. Fleming. "An unexpected spring storm may ruin an exposed plant."

'One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Eldale Rd. Elmira Ont. N3B 2C7

"To leave the old with a burst of song,
"To recall the right and forgive the wrong;
"To forget the thing that binds you fast
"To the vain regrets of the year that's past."

That is the way to a happy new year, said poet Robert Beattie a few decades ago.

It seems a good idea to end the year with a song but it takes an old soul to be the optimist, to forgive the wrong and remember the right. If we could all set this resolution in our hearts as the year winds down, we would all be better people. The world would be a better place in which to live.

Most people are chained to vain regrets. We live in a past that never was and a future that never can be. I'm no different. I buy a couple of lottery tickets every month and waste a precious hour or two spending the money I might win.

I dream of the day when I'll be independent enough to tell the boss to take his job and stick it. When—not if, you'll notice—I win that $1 million, I tell myself I'll give 10 per cent to charity.

Don't ask me the name of the charity but I have an idea it would be given to deprived children.

See? I've even got it figured out that far.

I would pay off all my debts, of course, to be even more independent. Invest the balance after a good holiday where the sun shines daily on the mountain top. I would give all my children a hefty gift, as much as the law allows, and then sit back and watch the rest of the world go by.

Sound good? How much time have you wasted in such useless frivolities? Worse still, think of the wasted energy spent in daydreaming.

The new year is almost here, so let us think of others for a change. Herewith is my list of wishes for the agricultural community.

To Eugene Whelan, since he is the biggest man on the list, more recognition from his cabinet colleagues so that he can carry out his plans for more security for farmers.

To Bill Newman, success in putting through some binding legislation to preserve farmland in Ontario.

To Peter Hannam, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, some less restless, less vociferous neighbors who will encourage him to keep his corn dryers going instead of calling police to complain. If only urbanites could realize that the noise, the odor and the dust helps keep food in their bellies!

So, a new year's wish that city people should try harder to understand the plight of the farmers in this country. No other sector of the economy contributes more to Canada than agriculture.

To the Consumers Association of Canada, the realization that food prices increase even less than the cost of living and that Canadians are paying less for food than any other country in the world.

Also to the CAC, some manna from heaven to keep them going to attack other sectors of the economy that may really be ripping off the consumer.

To the Christian Farmers Federation, continued success in their intelligent, often brilliant, methods of bringing the plight of farmers to the proper attention. Especially, more strength to Elbert Van Donkersgoed, the articulate executive secretary of the Christian farmers.

To all the farm wives and children of farmers, good wishes in their constant fight to keep the family farms going in this province. These people are the unsung heroes and heroines of the agricultural community.

I could continue but I'm sure you get the idea.

Last of all, of course, hearty good wishes to those wise and right-thinking editors who have the sense to include this column in their pages.

Most important: A happy new year to those many readers who indicate they enjoy this deathless prose.

May your worst day in the new year be as good as your happiest day of the old year.

Blessings to you and yours in 1979.

The Subtleties of Souffle Making

A souffle is one of the most subtly flavoured delights of the kitchen. They also have a reputation for being difficult, which they aren't, once the basic technique is mastered. A souffle is basically nothing more than a sauce, thickened with egg yolks, into which eaten egg whites are folded. A great variety of other ingredients can be added, turn it into a delicate appetizer, impressive main course or glorious dessert. The lightness of a souffle depends largely on how properly the egg whites are beaten and how lightly they are folded into the sauce base. Separate eggs carefully so that the whites do not contain a speck of egg yolk, as the fat in the yolk prevents whites from whipping properly. Be sure the bowl and beater are free from oily film - use a glass or metal bowl, rather than a plastic one. With a whisk or electric beater, beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry, to the point where they stand in stiff peaks and are still glossy and moist in appearance. If overbeaten, the foam will look dull, will have less volume and will break into flakes when folded into the other ingredients, making it difficult to combine properly.

Folding means to incorporate a light mixture (such as beaten egg whites) very gently into a heavier mixture (such as the sauce base). The point is to retain the air already beaten into the whites. Mixing is easier if a spoonful of the beaten whites is first folded into the souffle base to lighten it. Then, fold the base mixture into the rest of the egg whites with a rubber scraper, using quick, light strokes. Overmixing will lower volume considerably. It is better to leave a few unblended streaks for a marbled effect. Spoon into a souffle dish. For a crown or top hat effect, run the point of a knife, 2" deep, in a circle about 12" in from the edge of the dish. When baked, the souffle center will puff up higher, forming the top hat.

Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F), on the middle rack. Too high a temperature, as well as overcooking, will cause the egg protein to become dry and tough. One of the most important considerations is timing, as a souffle will fall when allowed to cool. The base mixture can be prepared well ahead of time, leaving only the job of beating the egg whites and combining the two, just before baking. There is a little flexibility in baking time. Once it is baked, turn off the oven and the souffle can stand there for five minutes or longer without collapsing.

Consider these points and you should encounter few problems in turning out a magnificent souffle. Try the following recipe served with a mushroom, tomato or shrimp sauce, accompanied by a crisp salad.

Basic Cheese Souffle

1/4 cup butter 1 cup milk
1/4 cup flour 1 1/2 cups cheddar cheese, dash cayenne coarsely grated
3/4 tsp. salt 4 eggs, separated
Melt butter in a saucepan over moderate heat. Blend in flour, cayenne and salt; slowly stir in milk and heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add cheese and stir until melted. Remove from heat. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-coloured. Blend a little of the cheese mixture into yolks, then pour yolks back into saucepan. Heat and stir about 2 minutes over lowest heat. Remove from heat and allow to cool.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F.

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Stir a spoonful of beaten whites into the sauce, then fold sauce into remaining whites. Pour into an ungreased 6 cup souffle dish and bake at 350 degrees F, for 45-50 minutes. Souffle is done when the top is well puffed and brown, but the centre is still slightly soft.

Makes 4 servings.

Variations

Prepare basic recipe, but before cooling cheese sauce, mix in any of the following:
- 1 teaspoon sage, thyme, basil, marjoram or parsley.
- 1/2 cup sliced Bermuda onion, sauteed until limp but not brown.
- 1 third cup minced cooked ham, crumbled cooked bacon or chopped cooked chicken livers.
- 1 third cup minced cooked vegetable: asparagus, spinach or broccoli.
- 1/4 cup deviled ham or pate.

Milk Calendar

The 'Milk Calendar' will be back in many Ontario households in 1979. The calendar features a milk-based recipe for each month of the year, along with a page of handy day-squares for organizing family events and appointments.

Month by month the calendar offers recipes to try, a free diet plan booklet to send for, money-saving offers and a recipe contest to enter. Some of the recipes are in fact based on entries to earlier recipe contests - the 1979 contest offers thousands of dollars worth of kitchen appliances as prizes.

The Milk Calendar is being distributed in Ontario inside the January edition of Chatelaine magazine, but the public can obtain copies directly from:

Milk Calendar,
111 Martin Ross Avenue
Downsview, Ontario
M3J 2M1

There is a charge of 75 cents per copy for handling and postage.

OPP New Year Patrol

In order to keep accidents to a minimum, all available O.P.P. personnel are on patrol during the Christmas and New Year's holiday.

One of the most effective methods of reducing injuries or deaths is by wearing seat belts and obeying speed laws; legislation in January 1976 made wearing seat belts compulsory and a noticeable reduction in fatalities reported by O.P.P. followed. In 1977, 279 fewer people were killed than in 1975, a reduction of 23.3 per cent over the two year period. There was also a decided decrease in costs of hospital care and medical fees over this same period.

So remember, when you drive... Buckle Up, and when you drink, don't drive.

United Co-op's sales up

Seventy-six per cent of potential voting delegates were among the 1,064 people in attendance at the 31st Annual Meeting of United Co-operatives of Ontario, December 12 at Toronto's Royal York Hotel. This represents the highest participation in a UCO Annual Meeting since 1975.

Four hundred voting delegates reviewed progress made during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978 and participated in an afternoon question period which included subjects ranging from UCO's Windsor Grain Terminal Elevator to feed mill renovations across Ontario.

The Annual Meeting represents a culmination of the co-operative's democratic process which includes spring and fall meetings in each of UCO's nine zones.

United Co-operatives of Ontario is owned by more than 44,000 individual members and 52 member co-operatives representing another 35,000 members throughout the province. They exercise local control through a democratic co-operative structure.

UCO supplies its members and patrons with a complete line of farm inputs including feed, seed, fertilizer, hardware and petroleum through CO-OP outlets in Ontario and markets grain, livestock and poultry.

Total UCO sales were $369.3 million and net savings increased to $2.9 million for fiscal 1978. Total assets of $142.9 million included capital expenditures of $11.8 million last year.

Coulthard re-elected UCO pres.

Robert Coulthard from Glencoe has been re-elected to his second one-year term as president of United Co-operatives of Ontario. The 45 year old beef and soybean farmer was re-elected following UCO's 31st Annual Meeting on December 12, 1978. Mr. Coulthard begins his sixth year on the UCO board during which he has served as 2nd then 1st vice-president.

Royden Bloomfield from Ilderton and Robert Down from Hensall were also re-elected for a second one-year term in those positions.

Ernest Miller from Perth was newly elected as the fourth member of the UCO's executive committee. The 61 year-old dairy farmer had just been re-elected for a second term as UCO's Group 1 director by delegates from zones 1, 2 and 3 at the Annual Meeting. He replaces Allan McIntosh on the executive committee who was president during 1975, 1976, and 1977.

Commerce cuts costs

An energy management and conservation program at Commerce Court in Toronto has brought large savings to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

The bank saved $180,000 in the first year of the program. Energy consumption for the first six months of this year was slashed by 17 million kilowatt-hours compared to the first six months of 1977.

The savings were achieved by shutting off the snow-melting equipment in the courtyard, reducing lighting by about 50 per cent and exercising tighter control over the operating time of heating ventilation and air-conditioning equipment.

To recognize the bank's achievement, Toronto Hydro and Ontario Hydro presented bank officials with an energy conservation award.

In a ceremony today at Commerce Hall, Richard Horkins, Toronto Hydro Chairman and H.K. Wright, Ontario Hydro Director of Energy Conservation, presented an electricity efficiency award to Lawrence G. Greenwood, Executive Vice-President-Administration (CIBC).

The Hydro officials noted the savings were made even though many conservation features were originally designed into the building when it was built in 1968.

Energy Bus Saves $36.74 Million

Potential energy savings of more than $36.74 million, have been identified by the 'energy bus' of the Ontario Ministry of Industry and Tourism.

"The energy bus has been extremely effective in accomplishing its purpose as a catalyst to industry in energy management," Larry Grossman, Ontario Minister of Industry and Tourism, said. "The success of the energy bus has stirred the interest of other provincial governments and the federal government in adopting similar programs," he added.

Part of the Ontario government's Energy Management Program, the energy bus helps Ontario industry reduce costs through more efficient use of electricity, gas, oil and water. The bus is equipped with an on-board computer which analyses electrical power consumption and provides an immediate estimate of attainable dollar savings.

Since August 1975 the energy bus has been crisscrossing Ontario visiting more than 818 companies. It has identified a total of $36,738,300 in potential savings. Specifically, it has identified savings of $7,954,430 in electrical power, $5,192,760 in heating insulation, $12,653,400 in waste heat and $9,794,480 in water. The average potential saving per call has been $44,912. The total energy expense surveyed in the past year is $273,317,000 with potential savings of an average 13.4 per cent.

The Ontario-developed program has spread far beyond provincial boundaries, Mr. Grossman said. The bus concept and computer programs set up in Ontario provided the framework for the federal government's industrial-commercial EnerSave programs wherein the federal government provides energy buses to any province interested in the program on a cost-shared basis. Six provinces outside Ontario now have an EnerSave bus.

In addition to its original energy bus, Ontario is now operating one of the EnerSave units.

Industry and Tourism consultants are also co-operating with other provincial and U.S. federal and state agencies interested in following Ontario's lead.

Companies with annual energy bills exceeding $20,000 a year are invited to contact their nearest Industry and Tourism office to obtain details on the energy bus programs.

Ontario's Energy Management Program was established by the provincial government in 1975. Its goal is to reduce the rate of growth of demand for energy to 3.5 per cent per year by 1985. Ontario's current energy costs are $6.7 billion annually. Fourteen government ministries are working on more than 100 projects covering all areas of energy use. The Ministry of Energy co-ordinates the program.

Winter Games a Big Show

by CLAUDE R. LEMIEUX

Brandon, Manitoba, is putting on a show next year: it's the fourth Jeux Canada Winter Games, Feb. 11 to 24. More than 2,200 athletes from all provinces and territories are expected to participate in this major sports competition. The city, with federal and provincial financial help, will spend $3 million on a new sports complex that will include an indoor hockey arena, a 50-meter swimming pool, three racquetball courts and an outdoor speedskating oval that will double as a running track in summer.

Canada Games are held every two years with alternating winter and summer games. The first Winter Games were held in Quebec City in 1967 and were followed by Saskatoon in 1971 and Lethbridge in 1975. Summer Games were held in Halifax in 1969, Burnaby, New Westminster in 1973 and St. John's, Newfoundland, in 1977.

The goal of the Games is "To provide a development competition of high calibre for a maximum number of athletes from all provinces and territories." It has succeeded well if one judges by the number of Games athletes who have gone on to higher achievements at the international level.

High jumper Greg Joy, who participated in the 1973 Canada Summer Games, took the silver medal in 1976 Olympics in Montreal. An additional 14 former Canada Games competitors also took part in the Olympics.

Nearly 40 per cent of all competitors are women and they take part in most of the 18 sports on the program. These are badminton, basketball, boxing, curling, fencing, figure skating, gymnastics, hockey, judo, racquetball, shooting, skiing, speed skating, synchronized swimming, table tennis, volleyball, weightlifting and wrestling.

Competitions will take place at the new sports complex and at the 5,200-seat Keystone Centre, the Western Manitoba Centennial Auditorium, the Brandon University campus and local schools. Alpine skiers will compete at Mount Agassiz and cross-country races will take place on the Brandon Hills trails.

Brandon has a population of 35,000 and is Manitoba's second-largest urban area. It is known as the Wheat City because of its importance in grain storage and shipping. It has more than 20 hotels and motels as well as several tourist attractions. Among them is the popular B.J. Hales Museum of Natural History which displays the flora and fauna of the prairies; wildlife exhibits and Indian artifacts. For more information on the Games, contact Jeux Canada Games, Journal Tower South Building, Ottawa K1A 0X6. For general tourist information on Canada as a travel destination, contact the Canadian Government Office of Tourism, Ottawa K1A 0H6.
